Murder: View Royal Man Charged

A young View Royal father, charged Friday with the capital murder of 14-year-old Susan Freschi May 11, was to be transferred today to Oakalla Prison.

Robinson

Trembling Fingers, Pale Face

David Robinson paid no attention to the crowd of reporters that half-filled the small public gallery in court Friday as a charge of capital murder was read to him.

The youthful, blond prisoner looked smaller than his slightly stooped, five-foot-three as he entered the courtroom.

* * *

He was flanked by two burly RCMP plainclothesmen while a third policeman watched from a half-step behind.

While he waited for Magistrate Harold Alder to appear, Robinson touched his pale face repeatedly with trembling fingers.

* * *

After his appearance, he was whisked back to his cell as quickly as he had arrived from inside the RCMP headquarters office that adjoins the courtroom.

David Leonard Robinson, of 324 Old Island Highway, a 24-year-old self-employed janitor and father of a week-old baby, was remanded to June 5.

He is charged with the bludgeon slaying of the pretty American teen-ager in a secluded wood about a quarter-mile from her aunt's home at 2637 Chilco Road.

VISITING AUNT

The La Canada, Calif., schoolgirl had been staying with her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, and her cousin Felicity since last fall.

Susan's nude and battered body was found by searchers May 12, the day after she disappeared on the two-mile walk from the Trans-Canada Highway bus stop to her aunt's home.

TIED WITH ROPE

Her hands had been tied behind her back with a 15-foot length of ⅝-inch manila rope which has since undergone laboratory tests. Police declined to discuss the findings of the rope analysis.

RCMP Inspector G. M. McKay said Robinson was first arrested last week on a charge of breaking and entering. Investigation of the lesser charge led to the decision to lay the capital murder charge Thursday night, he said.

NOT CUSTOMARY

He declined to give details of the breaking and entering charge because it would "... involve people who had nothing to do with the murder investigation."

Robinson will probably spend his week's remand at Oakalla. Police said it is not their custom to keep prisoners on week-long remands in city jail cells.

REMAND AGREED

He is scheduled to appear before Magistrate William Ostler in central magistrate's court at Saanich June 5, when a date is to be set for a preliminary hearing.

Friday's appearance was before Magistrate Harold Alder in provincial magistrate's court at the Law Courts Building.

Special prosecutor W. R. McIntyre and defence counsel Alan Bigelow, both of Victoria, agreed to a remand of the breaking and entering charge to the same date.

WEEK EARLIER

It was Robinson's second remand on the breaking and entering charge. He had originally appeared a week earlier in the same court.

Normal procedure in capital cases is for a preliminary hearing to be held in magistrate's court first. If the magistrate is satisfied the Crown has produced enough evidence to warrant committal, a Supreme Court trial is scheduled, usually before a judge and jury.

LEFT SCHOOL

Investigators painstakingly pieced together the girl's movements up to her disappearance and conducted hundreds of interviews with neighbors in the sparsely populated area, patrons of the Six-Mile House beer parlor and restaurant, and even casual passersby.

They believe Susan had left St. Ann's Academy after school to practice riding at the Victoria Riding Academy. She was preparing for a riding competition.

TELEPHONED HOME

She telephoned her aunt later to say she would be a little late because she intended to stay and help with a stable cleanup.

Mrs. Earnshaw, who usually picked up the girl in the family car at the bus stop, told Susan she planned to go to a movie that

Royal Farewell

HAMBURG (AP)—Queen Elizabeth, acclaimed by a boisterous harbor farewell of foghorns, sirens, water jets and cheers, sailed homeward from Germany Friday night in the Royal yacht Britannia.

A Queen Surveys Classic Fleet

Statue of Queen Victoria surveys yachts gathering in Inner Harbor for today's Swiftsure race which begins at 9:30 a.m. off Beacon Hill Park. Total of 86 yachts sail in 136-mile Swiftsure and shorter Juan de Fuca race but prospects of sailing weather are not too promising. Prediction is for winds up to 20 miles an hour, diminishing in afternoon. — (B. C. Government)

The Big Leap

Space rendezvous, solo jet 'swim' surprises in U.S. June shot

GEMINI GOAL: PASS RUSSIA

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—U.S. Astronaut Edward White will leap from his orbiting capsule early in June to take a self-propelled flight through space, officials disclosed Friday. He will approach — and perhaps touch — another satellite and snap a series of pictures.

In a stunning announcement, the Federal Space Agency said White and Gemini-4 pilot James McDivitt would try to rendezvous their craft with the burned out Titan-2 second-stage rocket that earlier put them in orbit.

White will climb outside the cabin and leap off into space by himself as Gemini-4 crosses over Hawaii on the second orbit.

He will then use a hand-held manoeuvring unit with double-barrelled rockets to try to nuzzle up to the gleaming rocket stage which, like White, will be whizzing through space at about 17,000 miles an hour.

The Federal Space Agency announced that a faulty battery had been replaced in the 7,200-pound spaceship and tests were being held to see if the ship was ready for flight.

The agency said June 3 remained the target date for launch, but a re-evaluation of the schedule is expected today after a crucial simulated flight test. Sources said a delay was likely.

White

They're Delighted

Meanwhile, McDivitt and White said they were delighted with the go-ahead for the unprecedented spacecraft and human manoeuvring in space.

The experiment was the latest to be added to the plans for Gemini 4—a planned four-day voyage that, if all goes well, will match and surpass the best the Soviet Union has yet managed in manned flight.

Still later in the flight, officials said, rookie astronauts McDivitt and White will try again to manoeuvre up to, or rendezvous with—but not actually touch—the Titan 2 Rocket.

The fabulous adventure depends upon how gently McDivitt can manoeuvre his capsule away from the booster rocket.

If it is soft enough, and doesn't cause the rocket to tumble and fly off in another direction, Gemini-4 and Titan-2 will fly "in formation" around the earth, never more than about 100 feet apart.

McDivitt will use his control jets—the ones successfully tested by astronauts Virgil Grissom and John Young last March 23—to close the gap to about 25 feet.

Then White will go out of the capsule into space, wearing a $26,000 suit of space clothes and 22 layers of material to protect him from the hostile environment.

Nylon Lifeline

White will be securely attached to the Gemini-4 capsule by a 25-foot nylon lifeline. But it will permit him freedom to move almost at will in that radius.

The hand-held propulsion unit, shaped something like a child's bicycle handlebars, employs oxygen jets with one pound of thrust each to push him from place to place. He can operate the gadget by simply squeezing.

The camera will be attached to the "handlebar" portion of the unit, officials said.

A spokesman said the manoeuvre probably would put White within touching distance of the Titan-2. But whether he will actually reach out and make such an attempt would depend on several factors, including whether the Titan-2 was tumbling.

After finishing his picture-taking mission, White will "reel" himself back in and re-enter the capsule. Then McDivitt will fire the manoeuvring jets again to put Gemini-4 about 16 miles behind the booster.

On the fifth orbit, as the capsule passes over the Atlantic between South America and Africa six hours and 40 minutes after lift-off, the astronauts will try again to drive their ship toward the rocket stage.

Federal Space Agency manned spaceflight chief George Mueller said that "if successful, we will have done some things that the Russians have not tried . . . manoeuvring to rendezvous and manoeuvring an astronaut in space with a manoeuvring unit."

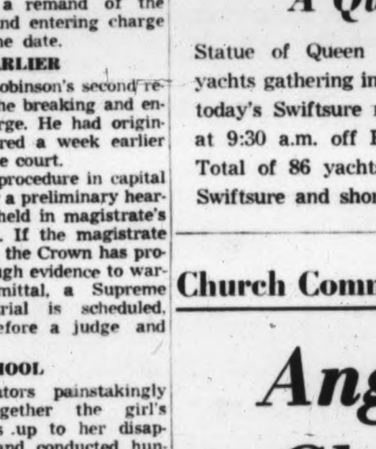

Atlantic Hop By Copter Piece of Cake

PRESTWICK, Scotland (AP) —Four Canadians stepped from a helicopter at Prestwick Airport Friday night after the first unescorted helicopter crossing of the Atlantic.

Their skipper, Thomas Scheer, 42, of Langley, B.C., called the 4,000-mile flight "a piece of cake."

"Just routine flight," he said. "We owe it all to Lindbergh and the months we spent in planning."

It took 15 days.

'Selfish East' Lashed

Western Canada might go it alone economically if the federal government doesn't change its financial policies, national Social Credit leader Robert Thompson warned here Friday.

Mr. Thompson charged Finance Minister Walter Gordon's policies discriminate against the west and accused the federal government of failing to recognize a boom going on in B.C. and the Prairie provinces.

SELFISH INTERESTS

The Red Deer MP said Mr. Gordon's financial policies reflect "selfish eastern interests that think they can use the West as their milk cow."

As an example of discrimination, Mr. Thompson pointed to Mr. Gordon's intention of not allowing the provinces to invest in banks.

The Social Credit leader agreed with Premier Bennett's statement that there is a widen-

Church Committees Agree

Anglican, United Closer to Merger

TORONTO (CP) — A group of clergymen representing the United Church and the Anglican Church have agreed on the basic principles of union between Canada's two largest Protestant denominations, it was learned Friday night.

* * *

A reliable source in the Anglican Church said details of the principles will be set out Tuesday at a press conference.

He stressed that the agreement is, so far, only between committees representing the two churches and any union must still be approved by the synod or general council of both churches.

Union between the churches would create a body with more than 6,000,000 members or adherents. In the 1961 census 3,664,000 Canadians listed their religion as United Church and 2,409,000 as Anglican.

* * *

The two churches have been holding discussions toward a possible union for more than 20 years. The source said the two "committees of ten," which produced the document to be released Tuesday, have agreed on the principles of faith and order.

* * *

This is regarded as the basic and most vital step to union, and implies a theological agreement on the nature of the way it should be governed.

Agreement between the committees was reached May 14 at a closed meeting. A copy of the document they consented to will be mailed to clergy from both churches Tuesday, the source said.

Cheap B.C. Power Lure for Japanese Smelters

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

TOKYO — Premier Bennett has mapped the course his government intends to pursue in establishing secondary industry in B.C.

He hopes — with Japanese co-operation—to begin shortly the creation of an iron and steel industry, a new aluminum smelter, as well as plants for processing of other raw materials for export.

Tied in with the program are further major extensions to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. (See also Page 3.)

None of these plans are detailed yet, because the premier points out that private enterprise will be involved on both sides.

But in talks with the Japanese government here the B.C. mission hopes to reach agreement on the basis under which such a program can be carried out over the next few years.

It will involve a further extension of the Japanese partnership in B.C. resource development.

Instead of taking B.C. minerals in the raw state and exporting them to Japan, the mission wants an agreement

Bennett Invites Sato

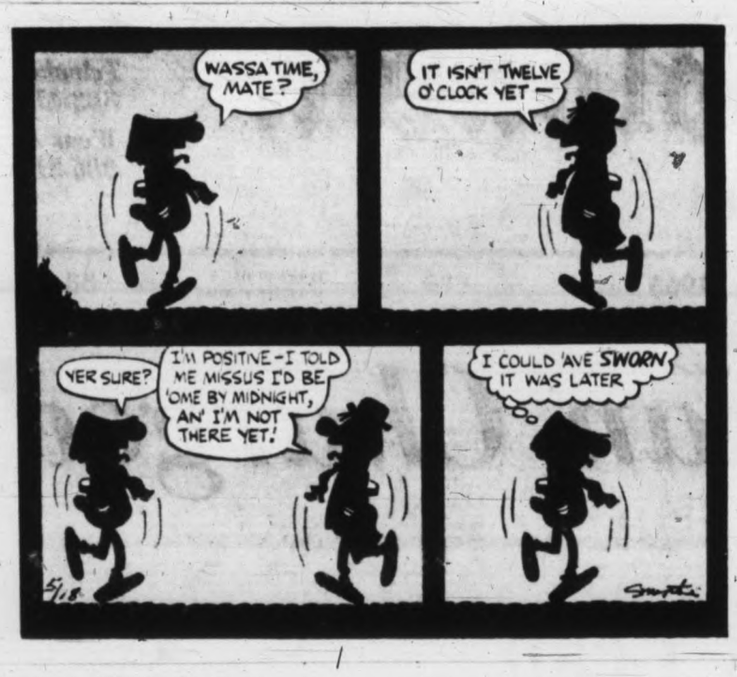

● Prime Minister Eisaku Sato has been invited by Premier Bennett to visit British Columbia in the near future. The premier said after a meeting with Mr. Sato this week that the prime minister indicated he was interested in seeing B.C.

Dogwood for the Imperial Palace

● There will soon be B.C. dogwoods blooming in the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

Premier Bennett this week promised to send several trees as a gift to Crown Princess Michiko. The B.C. mission, which was received at the palace by Crown Prince Akihito and his consort, presented the princess with a dogwood painting by Emily Sartain. The prince received a B.C. coat of arms.

Lands and forests minister Ray Williston was given the job of devising a means of transferring the live dogwoods across the Pacific.

whereby basic processing would be handled in the province and the semi-finished material would then be shipped across the Pacific.

The bountiful supply of cheap hydro-electric power that will flow from new dams on the Peace and Columbia is the key to the success of the B.C. bid.

Japan has limited hydro-electric resources and power is neither plentiful nor cheap here.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Bennett told reporters Stewart on the northern B.C. coast was a possible site for a large smelter operation.

"Stewart might not be bad," he said, "but there are other locations as well."

He indicated that if a smelter was established on the northern B.C. coast the government would extend the PGE to serve it.

It would mean a complete departure from Japanese policy of importing raw materials from abroad in the rawest possible state and using the manufacturing process to create jobs for the 98,000,000 people here.

There is, however, a growing recognition on the part of Japan that this tried-and-true success formula can't continue indefinitely. Hence the switch to production of heavy machinery to be sold abroad so that other countries can manufacture their own consumer goods.

The Japanese presumably, as partners in establishment of secondary industry in B.C. would have the inside track in selling equipment for the iron and steel mills and smelters.

Premier Bennett is using the argument that primary processing in the mineral and petrochemical fields and some fabrication of wood products in B.C. can help make Japanese products more competitive on world markets.

It will also help safeguard B.C.'s boom by ensuring through partnership agreements that Japanese exports don't drop off sharply if there is a recession.

★ ★ ★

"B.C. has the resources and Japan has the market," the premier said here. "It's natural that we should work together as partners."

There is no bogey of foreign ownership, Mr. Bennett said, because 95 per cent of all B.C. resources are held by the crown. This is only partnership in utilization of resources.

The resource development policies, carefully worked out over a number of years, have been successful to the point where the government can now foster further private enterprise development.

Hearing Loss Needs Attention Especially When Ear 'Runs'

By JOSEPH MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I woke up one morning my ears felt plugged up and I couldn't hear as well as usual. One ear stayed this way a whole week. Is this something that might just happen to anyone, or is it definitely a danger signal? Should I see an ear doctor?—MRS. A. T.

Dear Doctor: Is there any relief for hearing loss during a season of allergy? The hearing returns later.—MRS. H. J.

There are many reasons for loss of hearing: Damage to the auditory nerve (about which nothing can be done); hardened wax in the ear canal (it can be washed out); calcification which prevents the tiny bones which transmit sound from moving freely (surgery many times can correct this); and others.

With some people, heredity can be the main cause of deafness. There's not much to do about that. Hearing loss also comes from the aftermath of infections. That is why an earache (and most certainly a "running ear") in a child should not be taken lightly.

That's why badly infected tonsils should not be tolerated. And other nose, throat and ear infections need attention. As attacks of infection are repeated, damage to the ears accumulates.

Now as to Mrs. A. T. and her ear that felt plugged up, one likely explanation is that the Eustachian tube became obstructed. This is a very small tube from the middle ear to the pharynx, and its purpose is to equalize pressure on both sides of the eardrum, so it can vibrate freely.

SCAR TISSUE

A cold can plug the tube temporarily. If infection creeps into the tube, scar tissue can form, and the tube becomes that much smaller.

Awakening with a plugged ear can also be due to wax which has filled the ear canal.

The question about loss of hearing during the allergy season is somewhat different, in that congestion from the allergy—swelling, and accumulation of fluids—interferes with hearing. But it is still the result of the Eustachian tubes being partially clogged.

I can suggest only attempting to overcome the allergy itself, whether by avoiding whatever the allergy-causing material is, or having a series of desensitizing shots in advance, or by antihistamine drugs, or perhaps by a combination.

Dear Dr. Molner: What can be done for a 13-year-old boy who has pulled out his eyelashes and eyebrows? Will they grow back or can something be done to help them grow? Do you think this action is the result of nerves?—T.F.N.

The hairs will grow back, but very slowly. What concerns me is why a boy would do this. Call it "nerves" if you choose, but if it's just nerves it's a pretty extreme case. Some psychiatric evaluation ought to be undertaken at once before his mixed up emotions get too much out of balance.

evening and the girl said she would walk the two miles home.

Still wearing jeans and a sweater used in the riding exercise, Susan boarded a No. 15 bus. She is believed to have been carrying her school books, a handbag and a bag containing her school uniform.

Bus driver William Savage, 2638 Deville Street, told police the girl got off the bus at the end of the line at 7:50 p.m. and walked away down the Old Island Highway toward her aunt's home.

Police were not certain which route Susan took. A waitress said she thought a girl answering Susan's description had bought a Coke at the Crown and Anchor Cafe and left with the drink at about 9 p.m.

She could have gone via Atkins to Chilco or along the Old Island Highway and taken a short-cut through the woods behind the beer parlor.

Mrs. Earnshaw became alarmed when she returned home shortly after 9 p.m. and found Susan was not there.

After meeting several buses at the stop, Mrs. Earnshaw called RCMP at Colwood.

A search party organized by police found the girl's body in the woods at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday approximately half way between the short-cut route to her home and the longer route.

Her skull had been crushed at the back of her head and her hands were still tied behind her back, a coroner's jury was told later by a medical witness.

The doctor said there was no sign the girl had been sexually assaulted.

Near the body, police found a stained 1½-pound rock and the girl's clothes, untorn and in a pile.

PERFECT EXAMPLE

Neither province will take over defence or other similar federal responsibilities, he said, "but they'll go as far as they can."

Premier Bennett's current Japanese trade mission was a perfect example of the growing economic separation between east and west.

Mr. Thompson was in Victoria to address a meeting of party groups from Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

At a Friday press conference he also:

- Predicted a fall election;
- Forecast a return to the two-party system in Canadian politics within the next two elections;
- Accused NDP leader T. C. Douglas of "voicing the Communist line" in advocating a U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam;
- Gave the B.C. bank bill little chance of passing in the House of Commons.

Mr. Thompson said all political parties will eventually realign along socialist or free enterprise lines and hinted at a Liberal-NDP and a Tory-Socred merger.

Paris SEATO Teeth Coming Out Quietly

PARIS (UPI)—France is ending her military co-operation in the Southeast Treaty Organization and is withdrawing all her military staff from SEATO's Bangkok headquarters, a foreign office spokesman said Friday.

He added this did not mean France was abandoning political membership in the anti-communist alliance completely but refused to say whether such a move might come in the near future.

Hide the Innocent

Press Muzzle?

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau said in the Commons Friday he is considering possible restrictions on publicity given to the names of accused persons before they are convicted.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker interjected that such a step would be a "denial of" and "gross interference" with freedom of the press.

NO DECISION

Mr. Favreau called a press conference in his office later to emphasize that he too is concerned with press freedom and that he has reached no decision on the matter. It is not one of the most urgent problems before him.

He said the Criminal Code already contains two restrictions on the right of news media to report criminal proceedings. The code prohibited publication of the names of juveniles standing trial and confessions or admissions of guilt introduced at preliminary hearings.

SMEAR WORRY

Unfavorable publicity prior to the acquittal of innocent persons is a "serious social question" and he is considering ways of dealing with it. He stressed that he has made no recommendations to the cabinet.

An aide in Mr. Favreau's office said later that a possible corrective step would be to hold all preliminary hearings in private. If the judge decided there was enough evidence to warrant a trial, the record of the hearing would then be released to the press. If the charge was dismissed the record would remain secret.

Mosquitoes Slow Soviet Ship

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A Soviet steamer bound for Odessa was forced to reduce speed after heavy attack from the air, the news agency Tass says.

But no diplomatic protest will follow.

The winged assailants that swooped on the Black Sea steamer Khimik Selinsky were mosquitoes.

In a few minutes, they had occupied all cabins, blacked out the portholes and even invaded the engine-room, Tass said.

Visibility was cut so sharply that the captain had to reduce speed.

A layer of insects four inches thick covered all open decks, and a first attempt at smoking them out failed.

It was only on the second day, when the temperature dropped sharply, that the mosquitoes weakened and a strong jet of water was enough to wash them away, Tass said.

Douglas Tells Commons:

U.S. Pulls Puppet Strings

OTTAWA (CP)—New Democrat Leader Douglas charged Friday that United States intervention in Viet Nam represents a new form of colonialism which holds up puppet regimes lacking the support of the populace.

Mr. Douglas said during a foreign affairs debate in the Commons that the U.S. is involved in South Viet Nam not so much out of a fear of Communist aggression as from a fear the people might get an independent government capable of managing their own affairs.

'PROPAGANDA'

Any attempt to make the war in Viet Nam a "holy crusade against communism is to swallow propaganda wholesale" and ignore the facts, the NDP leader said.

He outlined his views on U.S. policy after External Affairs Minister Martin and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker joined to support the U.S. They said the New Democratic Party and other critics of the U.S. do not seem to understand how grave the communist threat has become.

BROKE AGREEMENT

Mr. Douglas said the United States broke the Geneva agreement on Viet Nam before the Communists by refusing in 1956 to have elections.

Instead the U.S. set up the "dictatorial and repressive" Diem regime to preserve its economic and political assets in the area. He said there is no doubt North Viet Nam is supplying some assistance to the Viet Cong in the south, but military assistance is "relatively small."

Copter Crash Hikes Heavy Viet Nam Toll

SAIGON (Reuters)—The war in South Viet Nam took a heavy toll Friday as hundreds were reported dead or wounded in air and ground action throughout the country.

Nine U.S. military men were killed when two American army helicopters collided in the air and crashed at Bien Hoa air base, 12 miles northeast of Saigon.

Of 11 men in the two craft, eight were killed instantly and another died after being dug out of the wreckage.

FIVE BATTLES

At least 95 Communist Viet Cong guerrillas were killed and 16 captured in five separate ground battles with South Vietnamese forces engaged in "search and destroy" missions 100 miles southwest of Saigon.

Government losses were 10 killed and 42 wounded. The wounded included three U.S. army men and one American helicopter pilot.

SUFFER REVERSE

Early Friday, government forces suffered a sharp reverse in another engagement with the Viet Cong only 15 miles southwest of Saigon. The guerrilla forces overran a regional outpost in Long An province, killing 24 South Vietnamese troops and wounding 12.

'Camouflage' Fight Not for UN

TORONTO (UPI) — The UN has no means of dealing with the Viet Nam and Dominican Republic situations, U.S. ambassador Adlai Stevenson said Friday while receiving an honorary doctorate of law at the University of Toronto.

He called both problems "camouflaged aggression" and said that, until international organizations can combat such guerrilla warfare, national powers—most likely the U.S. —must do the job.

U.K. Seeks Pacific Partners

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain wants the U.S., Australia and New Zealand to agree to closer military links east of Suez, an authoritative government source said Friday.

The source said the plan was still in its early stages but would have far-reaching effects on Britain's defence strategy in that area.

HEAVY COMMITMENTS

All four nations already have heavy commitments in the area through the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. The U.S., Australia and New Zealand have special links for Pacific defence through the ANZUS pact.

Prime Minister Wilson was expected to discuss the new move in private talks with Sir Robert Menzies and Keith Holyoake, Australian and New Zealand prime ministers, here next month.

Two-Face Policy

AS SHIPYARD wages on the Pacific Coast are on average $1 an hour higher than in eastern yards, it is quite clear that even with better production methods and greater output per man in the west, the dice are loaded against the B.C. shipbuilder.

The yards of Victoria and Vancouver in the past have been kept going mainly on federal government orders, aided more recently with the construction of a ferry fleet for the provincial government.

For the time being at least it appears that the B.C. Ferry Authority has completed, or is completing its immediate ferry requirements, and that source of new work for the yards cannot be counted as more than minimal.

That leaves the federal government, which is Canada's main shipowner, and is always in the market for vessels for one or other of its many departments.

The defence department with its naval orders, and the department of transport, have been the main customers of the B.C. yards, providing during the post-war years, sufficient work to keep them in business. Without these orders Yarrows, VMD and Burrard Dry Dock, might have been out of business altogether.

Unfortunately for B.C., the orders have come to the west on what might be termed a subsidized basis In other words, the government of the day has allocated so much work to the east and so much to the west. The bidding for contracts has not been on a national level, otherwise, production costs being what they are all, or most, orders, would have gone to the east.

The present government, which incidentally derives most of its support from Ontario and Quebec, does not think that this state of affairs should be allowed to continue. First the defence department, and now the transport department have indicated that further contracts for ships will go to the lowest bidder, no matter where the job will be done.

The government's new policy shows in the fact that all Canadian yards will be asked to bid on two tidal survey ships, one of which will be based in the east and the other in the west.

Local shipbuilders say that if there is to be no regional bidding, then the west coast will get no further federal government orders. They urge that the old policy of building ships on the coast where they will work should be continued.

While, as custodians of the public purse, Ottawa may have a point—debatable though it is—the principle of accepting the lowest bid no matter the circumstances is not a universal Ottawa application.

When last year a U.S.-owned engineering firm won a federal contract to build and operate a heavy-water plant in Nova Scotia its cost per pound of heavy water to the government was $6 more than a similar bid made by a Victoria firm.

The Victoria bid, although 20 per cent lower, was rejected, presumably because the government wanted the work to go to the depressed coal mining area of Nova Scotia.

Surely if Ottawa is going to be consistent, it must make all its bids either on a regional basis, or alternatively all on a national level with the order going to the lowest bidder.

Under the two-face policy now being pursued at Ottawa, the west is not getting a fair deal. It is time for an active show of displeasure.

Neglected Coast

BECAUSE OF ITS MORE exposed, damper climate, its ruggedness and lack of convenient access, the West Coast of Vancouver Island has traditionally lagged well behind the more favored east coast in its economic development.

This state of affairs may continue indefinitely, but the contrast between the good roads and social amenities of the east compared with the west is not a state of affairs the government can ignore indefinitely.

West Coast road access, except to the Alberni Valley region, is still substandard, and there are still many communities which depend on air transportation or occasional sea transport to keep them in touch with the rest of the world.

Until the link with the main body of B.C. activity is improved, the west coast will remain unpopular with those who work in its isolated communities and charges are made that the B.C. Highways Authority is not giving this area the attention and development it deserves.

The amount being expended on improving the connections with Vancouver Island's west coast are in effect peanuts compared with the amount being spent by Mr. Gaglardi's department in the Socred-favored interior. The provision of $21,500,000 worth of new roads and bridges just announced for the Kootenays is a case in point.

However, there are encouraging signs for the neglected west coast. Although roads to most centres are still mainly of gravel standard with limited access, great new developments by private enterprise in the region are forcing the government gradually to make reasonable living standards possible.

One notable new development is at Gold River, where the Tahsis Company is starting work on its new pulp mill and townsite. When the pulp mill is completed it is expected that the new town of Gold River will have more than 2,000 population.

Today it is no more than a mobile construction camp, but the services for a permanent town are being laid, and docking facilities for the mill are being erected. Connected presently to Campbell River by a pretty so-so road, Gold River is one of the communities which has been promised better treatment by the construction of a new government road.

The Quatsino Sound area where a greatly enlarged pulp mill and forest operation is bolstered by a number of producing mines is another that is clamoring for better access. The new Island Highway which will be bulldozed through to Port Hardy in the near future will be a great asset to this part of the Island.

But there are other areas where the situation remains far from satisfactory. Zeballos is still out in the cold; so is Tahsis, home of a big sawmill. The Tofino-Ucluelet part logging, part government road is still a bone-shaker entirely unworthy of a district that now boasts one of western Canada's biggest iron ore mining operations (at Brynnor, owned by Noranda Mines).

West Coast residents have been long-suffering, and perhaps not strong enough in electoral numbers to force their claims for better access. At a time when transportation facilities are so much faster and better than ever they were in the old days it is gnawing and unjust that so many west coast communities today should have poorer scheduled links with the outside world than they had when the CPR's old Princess Maquinna provided them with a slow but fairly certain weekly service.

"Going to apply?"

For a Former Enemy

Hand of Friendship

By HOWARD GREEN
Former Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs

THE VISIT of Her Majesty to Germany appears to have been eminently successful. It has done much to heal old wounds and to create a better feeling between the British and the Germanic peoples.

These two peoples are of much the same racial origin and have many characteristics in common; notably both have initiative, courage and determination. No wonder wars between them have been fought to the bitter end.

But now, what of the future? Faced with danger from the Communist world Britain, France, Italy and seven other nations of Western Europe in in 1949 joined the United States and Canada in forming the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Two years later Greece and Turkey became members and in 1954 it was agreed that the occupation regime in West Germany should terminate and she should become the 15th member.

The Germans now have 12 divisions in NATO which is double the number from the United States. They have been loyal and co-operative allies. No one could find fault with the way they have conducted themselves in the alliance.

At home their government has throughout been in the hands of moderates. It is functioning in a truly democratic manner. Extremists either of the right or left seem to have no power. The opposition party is as stable as the party in power, which is important, for there is to be a general election later this year and it may well bring about a change in government.

Economically the country is prosperous and is expanding steadily. There is no unemployment in West Germany. The problem is where to find the people required to do the work which has meant a substantial movement of labor from Italy and other countries in Southern Europe.

In world affairs West Germany has been taking an increasingly active part. She is now one of the leading countries in supplying aid of various kinds to the developing nations in Asia and Africa; while not a member of the United Nations she does belong to many of the subsidiary organizations. She has an observer in New York but declines full membership for fear this would mean East Germany also becoming a member and so make reunification of the country more difficult.

This question of reunification is always in the background and the West Germans do not allow it to be forgotten.

How and when can West and East Germany be united?

Of equal importance is another question which likewise is vital to West Germany, Europe and possibly to mankind generally: What of Berlin?

There you have a great city which was formerly the national capital but is now over one hundred miles inside Communist-controlled East Germany. Yet in spite of this fact and of the notorious Communist wall dividing their city the citizens of West Berlin remain loyal to West Germany and to the free world. They have shown the utmost discipline, resourcefulness and courage. So have the thousands of East Germans who have fled to the West.

The United States, Britain and France still have responsibility for the Western sector of Berlin and they are West Germany's main allies. They support her endeavor to bring about reunification of the country provided it is accomplished by persuasion and not by force.

The plea is made that citizens of both West and East Germany be given the right of self-determination. Obviously the belief is that both parts would vote overwhelmingly for reunification.

The difficulty in reaching this objective is of course the refusal of the Soviet Union to allow any such action. Until the Russians are favorable no change is likely to be made. They hope, no doubt, that the West Germans will one day grow tired of waiting and in desperation will overthrow their democratic government, turn Communist and thus reunite the country.

Certainly, as of now, there is no sign of this occurring. It would mean weaning West Germany away from her allies whereas her policy is to do everything possible to strengthen the NATO alliance.

One would think that the Russians, in their own interest, would eventually decide to cooperate with their war-time allies, the United States, Britain and France, to settle these questions of Berlin and reunification.

If they do not Europeans, both West and East, will continue living under threat and counter-threat and global war will always be a possibility. Berlin has been and still is the most likely spot for a conflagration to start.

Whether the Soviet Union will remain obdurate is in the laps of the gods. Meanwhile the visit of Her Majesty has brought great encouragement to the people of West Germany and probably to those in the Eastern zone as well.

It is one more shining example of the influence for good of our Royal Family.

Universities' Dilemma

The Doubtful Years

By IVOR BROWN from London

Sixty years or more have passed since Hilaire Belloc in a light-hearted but affectionate poem of Oxford memories made the Freshman inquire as he sampled new-found pleasures,

"Can it be here that Uncle Paul
"Was driven by excessive gloom
"To drink and debt and, last of all,
"To smoking opium in his room?"

Although some eminent Victorians were addicted to the laudanum which they found easily obtainable, the query about the moral decay of Uncle Paul was not meant by Belloc's readers to be gravely taken. Drink and overdrafts are always in the tempting way of youth released from school discipline, given a bank account and sniffing freedom in a larger air. But dope and despair? Were they really part of a late Victorian vogue? They appear to be sadly present in our own time.

* * *

The Proctors of Oxford University, august holders of an office which began 700 years ago, used to impose fines of a few shillings for minor offences of rowdy hilarity and other forms of petty rule-breaking. Now they are having to cope with a drug traffic. No longer loftily detached from the civil authorities and solving their own problems, they are cooperating with the police following reports that pedlars of marijuana do good trade in a city where report estimates its purchases at over 200.

Must that ancient street, the Cornmarket, commonly known as the Corn, now be called the Hemp? It is further suggested that morphine, cocaine, and habit-forming drugs are also being taken to relieve the alleged miseries and melancholy of youth.

When that kind of statement is made it is easily misunderstood by those who think that all news is general news. In fact, ordinary occurrences are not news at all in the eyes of a reading public hungry for sensation. What gets into some papers is the abnormality and that may be a very rare exception to a general rule of sensible living. It need not be supposed by apprehensive parents that their sons and daughters are in real danger of becoming 'junkies' at a university and cannot go to a lecture room without passing and perhaps doing business with a sinister pedlar in some alley among the venerable walls and dreaming spires.

There has for some time been evidence of a melancholia among students at all the British universities. This certainly was not apparent in the undergraduate life of recent generations. In my four years at Oxford I never heard of a suicide and that form of fatal despair is only very occasional now.

But there is no scarcity of mental and emotional distress. We are now told that some examinees go to their desks from mental hospitals where they are being treated for sundry neuroses. This was not so when psychoanalysis had scarcely been heard of outside central Europe and no student had in mind the ailments of mind and mood which the psychotherapists have made fashionable subjects of conversation. From discussion of a disease it is an easy transition to thinking that you have got it.

* * *

Neurotic and psychotic conditions are naturally induced when the words neurosis and psychosis are always in the air and when psychological reasons are discovered and psychotherapies prescribed for breaches of the law which may be only the product of youth's superfluous energy and were once sufficiently checked by the deterrents of normal discipline.

It is said that the competitive pressure has become so intense that the prospect of failing to get the expected honours in a final examination creates dangerous apprehensions and turns what used to be a worry into something much worse. But the fear of not finding employment at the end of a university career should not be present in a period of full employment. There was much more reason for concern in my time when the openings in business, both for scientists and takers of an arts degree, were extremely scarce.

During the nineteen-thirties when there was vast unemployment in all branches of national life there was far more case for anxious doubts about the years to come. Yet one did not hear then of an epidemic of profound melancholy and despairing attempts to escape from it by taking a mixture of sedatives and stimulants or by consulting one's analyst instead of one's tutor.

* * *

It was disconcerting to be told after an inquiry made at one of the new English universities that over 50 per cent of the students had doubts about the utility of their admission to this kind of further education. What is spoken of as a privilege was a puzzle and a problem to them. With such uncertainty there can be no happiness and the emotional unrest must be further aggravated if nagging fears of failure in exams are also at work.

The English universities have cultiplied in the last four years, with old foundations much enlarged and completely new ones made in Lancaster, York, Brighton, Norwich and Colchester. The report of the Robbins Committee issued in October, 1963, advised of a drastic and rapid addition of 60,000 to the 120,000 who were attending English universities in that year. Within ten years about 100,000 more admissions were experienced. Both the Conservative and Labor parties are committed to implementing proposed expansion.

It is surely a reckless assumption that all the new undergraduates will have the inclination, temperaments, and capacities to profit by this academic promotion. Unless there is also a proportionate growth of eagerness for university life and of contentment when it is won, it is an inevitable surmise that there is going to be a formidable amount of gloom behind college walls and a larger opportunity for the doctors specializing in mental hygiene, not to mention the pedlars of illicit alleviations.

* * *

May not the nation's governors have become somewhat intoxicated with educational fervour? After all, education is only a word. If the actuality be misused and resented it is a waste of time and money, making what is called 'the best years of one's life' a shattering disappointment. To defeat that frustration there must be efficient and enlivening instruction. Without that work lacks purpose and pleasure and the rich opportunities of free time in a free world may also be squandered by those depressed by the curriculum. It is idle to arrange for thousands of new entrances if many of those expensively maintained in college until they reach their early twenties are not really capable of taking their chances.

* * *

For all these new foundations can enough tutors be found who are sympathetic and creative as well as learned, able to make university life cordial instead of crushing? Their presence and companionship can rescue the bewildered students who find the new surroundings oppressive. Youth should and could feel that it is good to be alive in a university society in which making friendships is a natural part of making careers.

It was said long ago that 'the true university of these days is a collection of books.' That is not so. It is a collection of people using books and using them without confusion of the mind and harassing of nerves.

Jokers on the 'Phone

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

DIFFICULT, perhaps, to credit it, but there is a surprising number of nuts loose in the country who like to show what big-time wheeler-dealers they are by calling up Prime Minister Pearson and Conservative Leader Diefenbaker on their private residential lines.

And the later the hour, the funnier these jokers seem to think it is.

It may come as a bit of a surprise to realize that both the Prime Minister and the Opposition Leader answer their own phones at home—if you get them on their private lines.

And the private numbers of the Prime Minister at 24 Sussex Drive and the Conservative Leader at Stornoway in Rockcliffe Park aren't really all that private that they don't get passed around.

* * *

Not so long ago, to reduce the increasingly heavy traffic on the private line, the Diefenbakers had to change their so-called 'silent" number, as will the Prime Minister when the calls start piling up — and pile up they inevitably will.

The phones in both residences are in the family section—the studies and the bedrooms—and so the hired help doesn't always get to them first when they start ringing.

Especially not late at night.

It's a quite one-sided idiot kind of exercise, this calling of the Prime Minister and Conservative Leader, and with very little risk of unpleasantness involved.

For both men, now long used to this kind of petty nonsense, regard it as an altogether unnecessary but so far unavoidable part of the already too-heavy load of leadership, and try only to get these pests off the line as quickly and unabrasively as possible.

The only risk-of-sorts for the show-off who calls is that it's always possible to find Mrs. Pearson or Mrs. Diefenbaker on the line, and neither is constrained to go along with these long-distance fun and games.

In fact, you hear hints of some red ears being chewed off and strips torn from the egos of these kooks—and more edge to the sharp tongues of these good ladies!

The Pearsons had the advantage of some pretty intensive pre-training in the specialized field of VIP phone-answering.

For during all the six years he was Opposition Leader his home phone number at Stornoway was publicly listed under "Pearson, Hon. L. B." in the Ottawa directory — available in most big-city hotel lobbies and certainly on enquiry from "Information."

One of his friends tells of walking in on Mr. Pearson at home just as he was answering a long distance call from an utter stranger in Calgary and accepting a $10 bet on the outcome of a ball game.

Associates still wonder why he persisted in answering the phone and receiving all the mingled praise, abuse, argument, cajolery, jokes, cross-examination and other inebriated nonsense to which public figures routinely are subjected.

There were weekends when the phone rang every 20 minutes and many was the night when calls came in from as far away as Victoria (although mostly from Vancouver, where at midnight party-time it is middle-of-the-night 3 a.m. in Ottawa.)

The Diefenbakers for the last 10 years have had "silent" numbers, changing them from time to time, as they got passed around as a kind of party gag item.

But the continuing number change hasn't always saved them from after-midnight calls from jokers sitting around at hotel bedroom parties in the Mountain or Pacific time zones and suddenly deciding for kicks "Let's call Dief."

(The hour drag between Eastern and Atlantic time mercifully has spared both the Pearsons and Diefenbakers calls from the Maritimes.)

Can't you just picture the scene in the hotel at Calgary, Edmonton or Vancouver.

"Think I'll call good ol' Dief," says a show-off, wanting to demonstrate what a big-timer he is.

"Aw, don't give us that. Ol' Dief never heard of you," says someone else.

"Oh yeah?"

"Yeah."

"OK, smart guy, just you listen."

And in goes the call, and everybody but the opposition leader, or the prime minister as it so often happens, has hilarious fun ringing phones in the dead of the capital's night to try out some twice-told joke or play at being the big-shot by trying to work up, by insult or accusation, an argument with these so inhumanly over-worked men who so urgently need their sleep.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

The last of the Roman emperors, Constantine Palaeologus, died during the capture of Constantinople by the Turks 512 years ago in 1453. The city had been defended by 7,400 men and 13 warships against a siege lasting 11 months by 250,000 men and 300 galleys. Constantinople fell when 50 Turks entered the walls through a gate which had been opened for a raid and then forgotten. Though the intruders were killed at once, the populace panicked and the Turks were able to storm the walls.

First World War: Fifty years ago the Italian army crossed the Isonzo River and advanced into Austria; France reported 2,000 German losses in a day's advance towards Lille.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago the British Army retreated towards Dunkerque, the only Channel port still open; No. 112 City of Winnipeg Squadron arrived in Britain; the Canadian Parliament approved the $700,000,000 War Appropriations Bill.

Our Readers' Views

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest and if signed with pen-names, must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

It seems to me that people may be divided in two classes, those who say "please" and "thank you," and those who do not. This is a plea, or challenge, to those who do not, to give the matter some thought. Two things seem clear: (1) Courtesy is foreign to many people today (witness the percentage of youngsters who fail here) and, (2) with each passing year, still less courtesy. If this trend continues, in a few generations, courtesy might well be classed with the whooping crane, on the way out! We have organizations to protect our forests and wild life, museums to retain links with the past; surely group action here could be devised to advantage.

I do not know the answers, but I wonder about the cause, and if something cannot be done to check this decline in gracious living. Not that anyone deliberately means to be unmannerly, but rather it is perhaps, an untidy habit, speechwise, a habit easily fallen into. How utterly barren of etiquette a home could become in such a short time!

Would these people, in cold sober debate, defend their way of life? I can't think what the arguments would be. Time? Fiddlesticks! It could be a nature that is just too stingy to say "Please" or "Thank you," or smile, but I prefer to think it is a matter of thoughtlessness. Is there nothing that can be done to check the passing of this courtesy?

I have an idea or two which may serve to start the discussion ball rolling.

With the help of the press and radio, stickers for cars, signs in the stores, badges to be worn, Victoria would fairly wallow in the courtesy theme. The signs would read "Courtesy" or "Believers in Courtesy." Children would be made aware, possibly by essay competitions, on "Gracious Living as I See It," and young parents would be reminded that, in the teaching of their youngsters, in the first three little words, "Dada," "Mama" and "Ta," the last is the most important. "Believers in Courtesy" would never neglect a "Please" or "Thank you," and would give motorists or pedestrians better than an even break at all times. The image would really surround us.

Further, to every "Stop" or "No Parking" sign, I would attach a "Please." Is it not possible that in the thousands of times the "Please" would be read that the message would get through? Could it fail to rub off somewhat on the youngsters?

I would argue that even if a grouch who never, ever said "Please" or "Thank you," and whose smiles were austerity rationed, were tricked, cajoled, or coerced into practicing this courtesy for a spell, he would find in time that he wasn't nearly the grouch he used to be, and in fact, was really becoming a happier (and more loved) man. Of course, human nature is often quite contrary, and many would not give this thing a whirl for all the tea in China.

This is not a gimmick to attract tourists. It is a plan to raise the courtesy level for its own sake. Start at the breakfast table. Don't tell me that one who is habitually courteous, with always a ready smile, is not happier and healthier because of this! Ask any personnel manager about the importance of getting along well with others. (For this, perhaps the most important requisite, a ready smile). Who doesn't want to make friends, and influence people? Courtesy, like insulation, doesn't cost. It pays!

The above is what I would do. There would be much opposition. People would think us peculiar. Well, what a delightful thing to be remembered by! However, it might catch on, then surely, it would only be a matter of time, when the practice would snowball across the country.

Thank you for taking the trouble to read this.

G. F. HOWARD.

Correction

In the letter which you kindly published in the May 23 edition I note that you say "countries such as France, Spain, etc." This of course should read "Franco Spain."

I would appreciate a correction as of course it is absurd to include France in such a category.

B.C. Plays Second Fiddle To Abominable Sumoman

Winnipeg Man 'Come On, Cheer'

WINNIPEG (CP)—An elderly man shouted a greeting in French, then urged a silent group of spectators into applause when Governor-General and Mme. Vanier left City Hall Friday after a civic welcome.

"What's the matter with you people? Come on," the man cried in English. He began to clap and most of the crowd joined him. The governor-general waved.

WESTERN TOUR

It was sunny but cool for the vice-regal couple's third day of a three-week Western Canadian tour. They attended noon mass at St. Mary's Cathedral, then had a brief rest at Government House.

The vice-regal couple signed the visitor's book in the mayor's office and received members of city council and their wives in the aldermen's lounge.

The governor-general asked a group of school children on hand whether they would like him to ask that they be given a holiday and was surprised to hear a "no" among the chorus of "yes."

ALREADY ASKED

He said he had already asked for a holiday then asked: "Now don't you say anything to the one who said no."

A private dinner and a formal reception at Government House was on the vice-regal schedule Friday night. Today they visit the neighboring city of St. Boniface.

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

TOKYO — Two titanic wrestling matches have taken place here this week.

The first, watched avidly by most of Tokyo's millions, saw a character known as the Abominable Sumoman fail to win the sumo grand champion title.

The second, passing almost unnoticed here, involved Premier Bennett and his B.C. mission and their hosts, the Japanese government.

OH, SO NICE

The weapons: bouquets of flowers, equally flowery compliments and expressions of undying admiration on the part of each group for the booming economy of the other.

Premier Bennett has even invented a new catch phrase to mark the occasion — dynamic stability.

Admittedly, he wasn't applying it to the Japanese economy but to British Columbia. The morning round of meetings with Prime Minister Eisaku Sato and other high officials was over and the premier was talking then to B.C. reporters for home consumption.

EAGER TO HELP

Mr. Bennett found the Japanese "anxious and willing" to co-operate with B.C. in expansion of trade and capital investment in the province's resource-based industries.

The reason?

"I say this with undue modesty," said Mr. Bennett, "but it is due to stability in government and economy which B.C. enjoys. There are other areas where Japan can obtain materials more cheaply—but none with the security afforded in B.C."

VIP ROUTINE

The battle of flowery phrases began at Haneda international airport outside Tokyo late Monday.

Mr. Bennett and his party were greeted by a former Japanese ambassador to Canada Nobuhiko Ushiba, now deputy foreign vice-minister, and a battery of Tokyo newspaper and television reporters.

The premier got a big bouquet of flowers from a lovely little girl in traditional costume and was told by Japanese officials how important B.C. is as a Pacific trading partner for Japan.

GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

Mr. Bennett then took his whack.

B.C. was here, he told a press conference at the airport, in recognition of the great achievement by the Japanese people in rebuilding the nation's postwar economy.

"We come to see and study at first hand your great industrial economy," said Mr. Bennett.

Then, adding a typical Bennett touch, he said: "We come to see how B.C. can buy more from Japan."

The premier assured the Tokyo reporters Japan enjoys full rights to compete for business in B.C. and noted industrialists here had already won large contracts, notably on the Peace River hydro project.

B.C. has a great interest in trade with Pacific rim countries, he said.

WESTWARD HO

"The rest of Canada faces more toward the Atlantic," Mr. Bennett told the press conference.

"Only B.C. faces your ocean—our ocean—the Pacific, and our ports are open all year around."

It wasn't possible to tell from the impassive faces of the Tokyo reporters just what effect all this talk of dynamic societies in B.C. and Japan had created.

The leading English language newspapers here carried a few non-commital paragraphs. No one has yet got around to translating what appeared in the Japanese language press.

FIREARMS TROUBLE

It's worth noting that a current scandal in Sumo circles (very large around here) is the fact that Grand Champion Kashiwado is in trouble with the police for illegal possession of firearms.

No doubt both the Japanese government and Premier Bennett also have hidden weapons in these negotiations. But the final outcome remains a 64-yen enigma.

Australian Envoy Awaited

The Australian High Commissioner to Canada, Sir Kenneth Bailey, will spend the weekend at Government House during a visit to Victoria in which he will attend the convocation of the University of Victoria.

Sir Kenneth and Lady Bailey arrive by air Sunday afternoon and leave Tuesday for Vancouver. On Monday Sir Kenneth will be luncheon guest of the university at the Union Club, after which he will attend the spring convocation.

At 11 a.m. Monday, the commissioner will pay a formal call on Mayor Wilson at City Hall. He will visit provincial cabinet ministers later in the day.

Martin Has Hopes For Culture Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said Thursday he has "great hopes" that progress will be made toward a master agreement with France to permit cultural exchanges with Quebec.

Mr. Martin told the Commons that on Tuesday he showed a proposed master agreement drafted by the federal government to Jean Basdevant, director-general of cultural affairs for the French foreign ministry.

POWERS CLAIMED

Mr. Basdevant later flew to Quebec City for discussions with the provincial government, which claims to hold treaty-making powers in areas of provincial jurisdiction.

Pierre Laporte, Quebec minister of cultural affairs, told reporters on his return from Paris recently that in discussions about a cultural agreement Ottawa was not consulted nor was a master agreement mentioned.

Mr. Martin has said provinces may discuss details of international agreements when the issues fall within provincial jurisdiction but that any treaty signing is reserved for the federal government.

In Quebec, Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Quebec education minister, said the Franco-Quebec education agreement is a "turning point" in development of the province.

Under the agreement, Quebec and France will swap teachers who will study and take part in conferences and seminars.

Island Officials Plan To See Vaniers Here

Municipal officials from all over Vancouver Island will be given the opportunity to meet Governor General George Vanier and Madame Vanier June 9 at a reception at City Hall.

The governor-general arrives in Victoria June 8 for a three-day visit which is expected to be part of his farewell to the West Coast. Gen. Vanier is coming to the end of a one-year extension of his regular five-year term of office.

RECEPTION SET

Mayor Wilson announced Friday, at a meeting of city council, that the civic reception will be held at 4 p.m. June 9.

Invitations will be issued to reeves and members of council of adjacent municipalities and to mayors and reeves and their wives of Vancouver Island communities.

100 EXPECTED

It is expected that total attendance will be in the neighborhood of 100. The governor-general will probably receive guests while standing below a portrait of Queen Victoria in the anteroom to the council chamber. Cocktails will be served.

A spokesman at Government House, where the Vaniers will be guests, said Friday an official program for the visit had not yet been issued. It was expected early next week from Ottawa.

No Trucks for Verwoerd

LONDON (Reuters)—A political storm blew up Friday over reports from the United States that a British company had been granted licences to export military vehicles to South Africa despite a rigid arms ban imposed by the Labor government.

In a telegram to the Prime Minister Wilson, Britain's anti-apartheid movement said it hoped the reports, received earlier this week, were untrue.

A spokesman for the movement said David Ennals, a Labor member of Parliament and president of the anti-apartheid movement, was likely to raise the matter in Parliament shortly.

The reports said Britain's Vauxhall Motors had been awarded a multi-million dollar contract for heavy four-wheel drive trucks for the South African defence force.

The company was told the trucks could easily be converted into armored vehicles, the reports said.

But a spokesman for Vauxhall motors, a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Motors Corp., denied the company had obtained a special order for the supply of heavy vehicles to the South African defence forces.

Nation Decides It

Frustrated Folk Die Differently

LONDON (Reuters) — A frustrated Frenchman will drink himself to death, a Dane will shoot himself and an American will shoot someone else.

So says American psychologist Dr. Stanley Rudin, writing in the British scientific journal Discovery on the effects of pressures on people of various nationalities.

THREE WAYS

A frustrated German will organize a division and attack, an Irishman will die of angry hypertension and an Englishman will die of an ulcer.

The American, after shooting you, will establish a dollar aid program for your relatives, Dr. Rudin says. Then he, too, will die of an ulcer.

Dr. Rudin, a psychologist at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Lexington, Ky., concludes that obtaining wealth and power makes a positive contribution to a country's downfall.

Dr. Rudin examined the death rates in 17 countries from murder, suicide, ulcers, high blood pressure and alcoholism — the classic "psychological" death causes.

1,700 More Marines Recalled

Johnson Urges Latin Force To Fight Subversion

WACO, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson urged Friday the creation of new inter-American machinery to keep the peace and guard against "forces of slavery and subversion" in the Western Hemisphere.

"When hours can decide the fate of generations, the moment of decision must become the moment of action," Johnson said in a commencement address at Baylor University.

GREATEST OF ALL

Johnson hailed the creation of an inter-American peace-keeping military force in the revolt-racked Dominican Republic.

"This may be the greatest achievement of all," he said.

Johnson announced that he issued orders Friday morning for the withdrawal of 1,700 more U.S. troops from the Dominican Republic, bringing to 3,300 the total of men recalled.

WHEN SAFE

Also, he had instructed Lt.-Gen. Bruce Palmer, U.S. commander on the scene, to discuss further withdrawls with Brazilian Gen. Hugo Panasco Alvim, commander of the inter-American force.

"Such action will be taken when the military commanders believe it is safe and warranted by the arrival of further Latin American forces and the continued stabilization of the military situation," Johnson said.

The Latin American crises included these developments Friday:

● Most Latin American diplomats were non-committal on President Johnson's appeal but it drew prompt endorsement from the foreign minister of Brazil, Vasco Leitao Da Cunha. He said the U.S. president's recommendation would find warm response in those who are conscious of the perils of subversive action in our continent."

● Bagota's Foreign Minister Fernando Gomez-Martinez resigned in a move believed connected to the landing of U.S. forces. The surprise resignation followed students disorders and riots that lead to a state of siege and other emergency measures.

● Cuban Premier Fidel Castro said "Not even 20 million Yankee Marines" will be able to quell future revolutions in Latin America. He praised Dominican rebel leader Col. Fransco Caamano Deno for battling American troops and urged other revolutionaries to do the same in the event of U.S. intervention.

● A U.S. suggestion aimed at reaching a political compromise was coldly received during an informal session of the Organization of American States. The suggestion, advanced by Secretary of State Rusk, involved creation of an OAS political advisory committee empowered to help seek a political solution in Santo Domingo.

First State Passes Fluoridation

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Connecticut Friday became the first state in the United States to require that most of its public water supplies be fluoridated.

The House of Assembly and Senate passed a fluoridation bill and Governor John Dempsey signed it into law only moments later.

Dr. Franklin Foote, state commissioner of health, called the action "one of the biggest victories in public health in the 20th century."

Island Fatality

Inquest Jury Selected

By KLAUS MUENTER

CHEMAINUS — An inquest jury has been selected to probe the death of a young Victoria man whose car shot off the road near a bridge construction site.

The inquest into the death of 26-year-old Leo Robert Marceau, 3572 Tillicum Road, will open Monday with viewing of the body.

CAR SOUTHBOUND

The jury will meet at Chemainus June 7 with Coroner Dr. R. R. Wilson. Police at Chemainus said Marceau was killed shortly before midnight Thursday when his southbound car crashed about five miles south of Chemainus on the Trans-Canada Highway.

The dead man was found 12 feet from his car, on the soft shoulder of the highway. He had been the lone occupant.

NO WITNESSES

Police said there were no witnesses to the violent crash, but it appeared the car went out of control, struck a guard rail, smashed into the concrete bridge abutment, careened into a warning sign, rammed into a wooden railing and finally came to a standstill after it had struck a signal light pole.

Traffic at the construction site is controlled by temporary traffic lights and chanelled into one lane across the E & N overpass.

WIDOW SURVIVES

Marceau is survived by his widow and a small child.

Police said they are looking for witnesses who arrived at the scene shortly after the accident. Police were called by a passing motorist.

Nerve Change

MS Clue Found

NEW YORK (AP)—Scientists have announced a striking new finding in studies of multiple sclerosis and related diseases in which nerve fibres lose their natural insulation.

Loss of this insulation—a sheath known as myelin—causes a kind of short-circuiting of nerves with crippling effects. Many different body organs may be affected. Often there are periods of temporary improvement.

The new finding is that drastic changes in the bio-electric activity of nerve tissues can occur before there is any loss of the nerve insulation.

This opens a new area for research, and may help explain some puzzles about multiple sclerosis, abbreviated as MS.

The new research is reported by two New York neurologists, Dr. Murray Bornstein of Mount Sinai Hospital, and Dr. Stanley Crain of Columbia University.

Our Double-Deckers Will Tour Vancouver

A Victoria firm will run two double-deck London buses around Vancouver next year, as a result of a decision by Vancouver's vehicles-for-hire board Friday.

London Omnibus Tours Ltd. won permission to compete against the two double-deckers to be operated by Vancouver Airline Limousine Ltd., which had protested that there wasn't enough business for four buses.

Board chairman Ald. Thomas Campbell suggested that if Victoria could support three such buses, Vancouver could support four.

Fire Near Lunch Hour End

Edmonton Pupils Escape

EDMONTON (CP) — Brightview Elementary School in west-end Edmonton was destroyed Friday by a fire discovered only five minutes before children would have entered the building after lunch.

Dr. Peter Bargen, superintendent of the Edmonton Public School Board, said at the scene: "We have accounted for all the children and teachers."

NO ONE HURT

The school has an enrolment of 297 students.

No injuries were reported.

The two-storey frame structure built 13 years ago was reduced to rubble within two hours after the fire was reported at 1:08 p.m. MST.

Students in Grades 1, 2 and 3 were in the school yard waiting for the bell to ring for afternoon classes. Students in Grades 4, 5 and 6 were at another school taking part in a track meet.

WINDOWS BLOWN

People who live in the area reported that an explosion blew out all the windows on one side of the school building.

The fire was first noticed by a first-grade student playing in the school yard. Teachers searched all but one of the school's 10 classrooms and the washrooms before leaving.

Heavy smoke from the burning building drifted through Holy Cross Roman Catholic School across the street, forcing evacuation of nearly 400 students.

The fire spread rapidly, sending up clouds of heavy smoke that could be seen five miles away in downtown Edmonton. More than 15 fire trucks answered three alarms.

Connie McCarthy, who lives next door to the school, said she saw "flames from an upstairs window on the southwest corner of the building" about 1:10 p.m.

She said she watched for about 15 minutes and then "I heard an explosion. All the windows in the (west) side of the school were blown out."

Dr. Bargen said that first indications were that there was no explosion in the boiler room on the first floor of the building.

Metal Stocks Recover

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials snapped a five-day string of losses by making small fractional gains.

The gains were too small to fully recoup losses earlier in the week. Speculative oils were more perky than usual but prices were mixed.

Golds gained substantially and senior base metals added strongly as well.

Asamera, which traded hectically earlier this month, rose 20 cents to $1.55 and Anglo United Development rose 12 cents to $1.42. Banff, however, fell 55 cents to $7.80.

* * *

VANCOUVER — Industrials were mixed. Woodwards rose to 27, Sun "A" to 27⅝, Rothman to 26 and Doman common to 9⅝. Easier were MacMillan at 33¾ and McKay Cormack at 4¾.

Mines were without feature. Granisle was more active and firm at 2.80. Utica, Galaxy, Silver Standard and Copperidge were lower.

* * *

MONTREAL (CP) — Most sections advanced narrowly in moderately active trading.

CIL added ½ to 22½ and Asbestos ⅛ to 28⅝.

Great Lakes added ⅜ to 23¼ and B.C. Forest ⅜ to 28⅞. Price Bros. gained ¼ to 42¼. Brinco was up ⅛ to 6.

Among speculative mines, Camflo added 15 cents to $2.75 and Midepsa 15 cents to $3.40. Black Hawk rose 10 cents to $3.10 and Jubilee Iron five cents to $4.20. Kodiak Pete dropped 15 cents to $3.25 and New Imperial seven cents, at $2.08.

NEW YORK (AP)—Airlines put on another show of strength in a rising stock market.

A number of Wall Streeters got an early start on their U.S. Memorial Day holiday. The stock market will be closed Monday, making it a three-day respite.

Eastern Air Lines rose 1⅜ to 68⅞. Continental Air Lines gained 2.

Comsat advanced 1⅛. The company made its first proposal for domestic satellite communications service.

General Motors rose 1⅜ on heavy trading and Ford rose ⅜.

Alberta Oil Leases

Big Bids Never Came

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

The sale of oil and gas leases held this week by the government of Alberta brought more than $7,000,000 into the provincial treasury—much less than had been expected.

Included in the sale were a few parcels of land near the vaunted Banff oil discovery near Rainbow Lake in the northwest corner of the province.

TWO BIG BIDS

Provincial oil experts in Edmonton thought the sale might bring in $15,000,000, but lack of information as to what the drills had discovered appeared to frighten off potential bidders.

The two big bids for land in the Rainbow Lake area were both made by Socony Mobil, one of the major firms with an interest in the discovery well.

$211 AN ACRE

They offered $3,513,578 for two parcels of land totalling 16,640 acres, an average of $211 an acre.

Another sale in July will bring up a larger variety of acreage from the Rainbow Lake area, and it may provide more spirited bidding.

SHARES DROP

The comparatively modest bidding removed some of the glamour from shares in oil companies with holdings in the district.

The price of Banff Oil and of Dynamic Petroleum dropped about 10 per cent in Friday's post-sale trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

CAPTIVE MARKET

A new captive market for lead concentrates from the Pine Point mines on Great Slave Lake has been established in Japan.

Consolidated Mining and Smelting, which controls Pine Point, has recevied permission from Ottawa to sell 500,000 tons of lead concentrates to Japan over a 10-year period beginning January 1966.

Value of the exports will be about $15,000,000 a year.

NEW COMPANY

Purchasers of the concentrates are Mitsubishi Cominco Smelting Co. Ltd., a new company which will be owned 55 per cent by Mitsubishi Metal Mining Co. Ltd. of Tokyo and 45 per cent by Consolidated Mining and Smelting.

In a statement from Trail,

Cominco says most of the concentrates for the new Japanese smelter will come from Pine Point.

INLAND SEA

The smelter is to be built on Naoshima Island in the Inland Sea of Japan. It will be completed about a year after construction begins.

While the Trail smelter will be bypassed under the new arrangement it is felt that the Japanese smelter will open up a new market for Canadian lead concentrates.

BONDS FOR CHINOOK

Chinook Shopping Centre Ltd. of Calgary is redeeming $1,500,000 of its existing mortgage bonds and refunding with $4,500,000 6½ per cent general mortgage sinking fund bonds maturing June 15, 1989.

The new bonds are being offered at par and will carry rights to purchase common shares of Chinook at the rate of 30 shares for each $1,000 bond.

The extra financing is required for expansion purposes.

CITY RECEIVES BIDS

A syndicate headed by A. E. Ames and Co. made the best bid on $729,000 City of Victoria 20-year serial debentures.

The syndicate's bid of 99.707 per cent was the best of ten received. A group headed by Hagar Investments was second at 99.328 per cent, and by Burns Bros. and Denton came third at 99.289 per cent.

The one-to-10-year bonds have been sold privately and the balance (11 to 20 years) are being offered at 100.

ON THE BLOCK

Five shopping centres owned by the now defunct Capital Developments Ltd. are to be offered for sale.

They are situated in Port Alberni, Castlegar and Newton, in B.C. In Red Deer, Alberta and Thompson, Manitoba.

UNSECURED NOTES

Each shopping centre is encumbered with first, second and third mortgages and there are $2,500,000 in unsecured notes owned by 350 investors.

The unsecured creditors will qualify for recovery only after the mortgages have been met.

The Vancouver real estate firm of H. A. Roberts is handling the sale.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials at Los Angeles County General Hospital, the scene of Dr. Kildare and other TV doctor shows, said Friday a "heal-in" campaign by doctors had been curbed by administrative action.

Resident physicians and interns, miffed by an "inadequate" pay raise of $10 a month, Thursday began flooding the huge hospital with patients.

City Milestone

Faiths Come Closer

Christian church unity in Victoria will mark a milestone of progress next month when Roman Catholic Bishop Remi de Roo will speak in two United Churches.

The 41-year-old bishop has accepted invitations to deliver greetings at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, June 6, at Metropolitan United Church, said Rev. Albert E. King of Metropolitan.

The occasion is a combined service in celebration of the 40th anniversary of the union of Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian churches in 1925.

Council Report

Bishop de Roo will also speak at 7:30 p.m./Sunday, June 13, at First United Church, when his subject will be the Second Vatican Council, which he attended last fall in Rome.

Bishop de Roo, who is in Montreal, was not available for comment, but a spokesman said the invitation was welcomed.

Rev. King said the bishop answered the invitations, extended about 10 days ago, almost immediately.

"I believe this is the first time such a move has been made by a United Church on the Coast. Because things are moving so fast, I wouldn't like to say it was the first time in Canada."

Monsignor Michael O'Connell, a Catholic spokesman, said Protestants have in the past read scriptures in St. Andrew's Cathedral. He said an occasion of the kind was last week's Labor-Religion Council seminar at St. Andrew's.

Mr. King said neither of the two United Church ministers have been invited to speak at the Catholic church but added he sees no reluctance by the Catholic Church.

Voice of One

Another Christ? Never!

By DR. FRANK MORLEY

A popular heresy today holds Jesus did not really suffer, die and rise from the dead. This is exactly what the Gnostics believed. It was a heresy against which the early Church had to fight for its life.

The Apostles' Creed contended Jesus Christ was an historical person, not merely a figment of the authors' imagination.

* * *

He was truly human and truly divine, yet Jesus was different from other men.

He perfectly expressed God —"In Him dwelt all the fullness of the Godhead bodily"— but Jesus repeatedly speaks of God as another personality. "I will pray the Father." "Father, if it be Thy will."

* * *

When Emerson and Pierre Berton after him state that another Jesus must come, they discard this fact of the uniqueness of Christ and the battle of the Apostles' Creed must be fought all over again. We can have other Wesleys, other Francis of Assisis, other Loyolas but only one Jesus Christ.

When Dr. Howse holds that Jesus did not actually rise from the dead he is stating the heresy against which Paul was contending when Paul said, "If Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; yet are yet in your sins."

* * *

Nor did the Gnostics believe in either hell or a final judgment. Judgment they considered a moral process and hell the results received on earth for bad action. They would say that the experience of mankind is the judgment of mankind, as most people maintain today.

It is ironical that the Apostles' Creed describes the birth of Jesus in order to emphasize His humanity. Contemporary society doubts His divinity.

* * *

The Apostles maintained that Jesus passed through all the experiences of life, death, and resurrection. But Jesus would return visibly in judgment on and redemption of the earth.

The phrase, the Holy Ghost, also troubles the church today, but more and more the truth of it grows on the soul. When it is lost, the life of man withers and dies. A church without this constant experience is a dead church.

Repercussions

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant has warned that enforcement action taken by the Organization of American States in the Dominican Republic may cause repercussions in other regional organization in the Middle East and Africa.

He refused to say whether he considers enforcement action in conflict with the UN charter.

Love Redeems Illicit Affair

TORONTO (CP)—Extra-marital sexual relations can sometimes be tolerated if they are motivated by love, says a United Church of Canada official.

Rev. J. M. Dickinson, director of pastoral counselling services, was discussing the "new morality" at a church lecture group here.

The new morality, he said, stresses a life in a freer society in which one tries to understand the motives behind a man's action rather than condemn the action alone.

"Many extra-marital love affairs must be more graceful in the eyes of God compared to the sometimes sterile, beastly and destructive sex manifestations within the marriage," said Mr. Dickinson.

Homosexuality, long regarded as one of the grossest of evils, for similar reasons should not be condemned, he said.

"One enters every situation in life asking, not so much what does the moral law require of me or what is right and wrong, but rather what does genuine love for the other person require of me," he said.

This type of thinking marked the end of any kind of moralism based on the authority of church scriptures, in which man's actions were neatly categorized into good and bad.

From the point of view of the new morality, one tries to understand what effect a man's action has had on him and what it has meant to him, Mr. Dickinson said.

In this case, there were "good and evil dimensions" to every individual action.

But people should feel released from "this ridiculous command to be a good little boy and God will love you."

There has been a tendency for the church to be identified with this old morality, he said.

"It is most important that the church be far more flexible" as rules and regulations change in society.

Leadership Talk For Parents

Rev. H. Gordon Walker, vicar of St. David's by-the-Sea, 5186 Cordova Bay, has invited concerned parents of area adolescents to meet in the Fellowship Hall at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

Purpose of the meeting, sponsored by the church's adult study group, is to "consider what to do to supply proper leadership and guidance for local adolescents."

Jim Slater, Victoria leader of the Young Life Movement, will address the meeting. Representative young people are to take part in the discussion.

Board Rejects Brutality Claim

RICHMOND (CP)—The school board here has absolved an elementary school teacher of a charge of brutality against a nine-year-old boy.

Board officials who investigated say they uncovered no evidence of brutality. Mrs. A. P. Philip had told the board her son was punched twice in the stomach by a teacher.

Captain Seeking Recruits For Anglican Church Army

By IAN ARROL
Church Editor

Captain Kenneth Buchan, 28, of the Anglican Church Army will deliver family instruction at 9:30 a.m. and the sermon at 11 a.m. in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday.

The first officer of the church army from the diocese of British Columbia, Captain Buchan graduated from headquarters at Toronto earlier this month, after two years training financed in large part by the cathedral parish.

PARISH MEMBER

As a member of the PPCLI stationed in Victoria from 1957 to 1963, the captain was a member of the parish. He married Vanessa Wright, 1236 Faithful street, in 1959, and both were members of the cathedral choir and Couples' Club.

Captain Buchan is on leave until July 15, when he will take his first posting at Hamilton, Ont., in a new centre opened under auspices of the diocese of Niagara. Called The Compass, it is a converted store which will serve those needing help and counselling.

REACHES OUTSIDE

"As with the Salvation Army, the main purpose of the Anglican Church Army is to reach those outside the church to bring them in to the fellowship of the church," said the new captain.

He said the Anglican Church Army was started in London in 1882 by Rev. Wilson Carlile of St. Paul's Cathedral. "Those in the army were not ordained clergymen, but are commissioned as evangelists within the church.

PRISON WORK

"At present in Canada, we have 60 men in the field serving in mission parishes (Lake Cowichan has been one), prison work, police work and youth work.

"Some are on the staff of city parishes."

Unlike the Salvation Army, all commissioned officers are captains—none higher, none lower.

While in Victoria with his wife, 25, and two children, Denise, 5, and Janice, 20 months, the new captain would like to do some recruiting.

"There is a need today for young men who feel called upon by God to do this type of work within the church. Any young man who has dedicated his life to Christ and who would be interested in the Army can reach me by calling the cathedral."

Academic qualifications are Grade 10 minimum—matriculation preferred.

Captains are not ministers and hence cannot administer the sacrament, but with special permission of the bishop they may perform marriages, baptisms and burials. And, of course, they are preachers.

A uniform, complete with officer's cap, is worn with the service, but the captain is wearing casuals until official posting in July.

Archbishop Sees Unity On the Way

WINNIPEG (CP) — A leader of nearly 2,000,000 people of Greek Orthodox faith suggests the time may be approaching for an end to a 900-year-old division between Greek and Roman Christions.

Archbishop Iakovos of New York, Primate of the Greek Church of North and South America, said at a press conference Thursday: "I believe the church will again be undivided."

Here to discuss problems of the Church in Canada with 80 laymen and priests, he told reporters: "We are stirring. We cannot put the clock back. We are moving forward."

Archbishop Iakovos was the first representative of another branch of Christianity to visit a Roman pope since the schism, when he met Pope John in March, 1959.

Anglican Newsletter:

Graham Splits Church Views

Church people are divided in their opinions about the Billy Graham Crusades, says The Anvil, newsletter of Christ Church Cathedral, in commenting on the Leighton Ford Crusade scheduled for Victoria Memorial Arena Sept. 5 to 19.

The May issue of The Anvil relates that some months ago the Victoria Council of Churches "which is composed of all the main Christian denominations except the Roman Catholic" was asked to sponsor the Crusade.

NO SUPPORT

"After prayer and careful discussion, the council . . . declined to do so."

Some church people, according to The Anvil, consider the crusades "an obviously right and effective way of bringing the Gospel to those who cannot be reached by other means.

"Others are made dubious by what seems to them to be an anti-intellectual fundamentalist presentation of something less than the full Gospel."

'SINCERE'

The Anvil said two of the cathedral clergy found Mr. Ford, Mr. Graham's brother-in-law, "is clearly a sincere man."

"Those who feel called to take part in his crusade must do so without criticizing those who do not. Those who decline to take part must be just as eager to catch souls for Christ in other ways."

The Anvil recommends that all church people surround the crusade with prayer: "That God may prosper what is good in it, overrule what is mistaken and above all use it for his glory and the salvation of souls."

Pope's Visit 'Iffy' Affair

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Vatican sources said Friday a visit by Pope Paul to Poland next year would depend on international developments and the attitude of the Communist government.

Catholic sources in Warsaw said Thursday the Pope would go to Poland May 3, 1966, to join in celebrations of the 1,000th anniversary of Catholicism there. They said plans for the visit had been worked out during the recent Vatican trip of Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, Primate of Poland.

There have been persistent rumors here that the Pope was planning to visit Poland. It would be the first trip by a pontiff to a Communist country.

International developments would play the biggest role in the pontiff's decision, the sources said.

They recalled the Pope considered going to the Philippines this spring to take part in 400th anniversary celebrations of Catholicism there, but decided against it because of "tensions and dangers" in the world.

Another key factor would be the attitude of Poland's government.

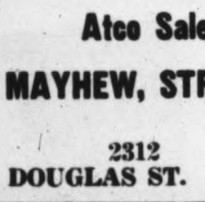

A visit from the pontiff would give Poland's 30,000,000 Catholics a tremendous boost in morale. But the Communists might try to use it as a sign of approval for their policies, especially in church-state relations.

STAN DELAPLANE Lends Hand To Smooth Way

"We are flying to Europe. This is our first trip. Is there any special airport procedure we should know?"

All the airlines ask you to check in an hour ahead of flight time. But you don't have to panic if you make it a half-hour. They do double-checking on names, reservations, etc.

I would try to make it an hour or more though because there's always a lineup. And a cushion of time lets you exchange some dollars for money of the foreign port of arrival—handy for tips and taxis.

★ ★ ★

". . . and how much duty-free items can we take in?"

The general rule is a bottle of liquor and two cartons of cigarettes. But England is the only country I've seen recently who asked me or even looked in my bags. And in England, they allow more than the law allows if you have a ticket onward to other countries. It's up to the customs inspector. And he's generous.

"Whom do we top?"

English porters a shilling a bag. France a franc. Spain five pesetas. (All around 15 to 20 cents.)

"Any things that we should take that are lacking in Europe?"

Europe has just about everything. However, I usually put three or four of the airline's soap bars in my flight bag enroute. Some of Europe still serves wafer thin soap. And in Italy you usually have to ask for it.

★ ★ ★

Shoe shines are a problem in Britain—and I never found any answer for it. There—and all over Europe—leave your shoes in the hotel corridor at night. The night porter will WIPE them off. But the British do their own shoe-shining at home. The British tell me they feel it is demeaning for both the shiner and the person whose shoes are being shined. And it's a kind of Sunday hobby to shine your shoes at home.

Not so in Italy, France, etc. And in Spain, shoeshine stands are everywhere.

"Should we take Kleenex, paper towels? Anything like that?"

Towels, no. You can buy Kleenex or other tissues anywhere — though at somewhat higher prices than at home in most countries. They're handy in the flight bag. On many trains — (crack trains of Italy for example)—very necessary. Planes furnish them.

★ ★ ★

"Anything to watch out for?"

I don't leave money lying around. But I've never had anything taken from my room in any country. The other day in Pisa, an Italian boy chased me half a block to give me a small coin I'd dropped accidentally.

Taxis are confusing. Because they can't adjust meters to changing rates. But in countries where they have changed rates, or there is a night supplemental charge etc. the rates or posted—usually in all languages.

Whoever makes your hotel reservations, ask them what do you do if the hotel simply doesn't hold to it.

★ ★ ★

Italy is jammed as usual. And the hotels are pretty arrogant. One cute little thing you don't find out until you get there: The hotel tells you you must take at least two meals in the hotel. Raising your room rate about $7 to $10. If you don't like it, no room.

British, Swiss, and German hotel reservations are always OK. Spain probably. France maybe. Italy—who knows.

Old, New Flourish Amidst Gaiety

By GORDON IRVING

SITGES, Spain (CNS) — This is a clean, whitewashed vacation town where the balconies are decked with flowers, the climate of the Mediterranean is kind, and orange and palm trees flourish everywhere.

The 10,000 population of Sitges, 25 miles south of Barcelona, is expected to treble over the next five months of the vacation season.

The old and the modern are side by side. Sleek automobiles glide down the narrow streets past the old Spanish donkey-carts.

★ ★ ★

Gaiety is everywhere in this town on a beautiful bay. For the holiday-maker who isn't interested in the ancient and the historic, there are casinos with shows and dances in their gardens, nightclubs which stay open until 3 in the morning, and four movie theatres, two of them open-air at night.

The city-lover can motor up to Barcelona, one of Europe's grandest cities, and enjoy opera, ballet and symphony concerts.

"But it is the sunbathing and the seabathing that are our major attractions here," an official of the Spanish National Tourist Office told me. "Sitges is one vast solarium from each April to October."

★ ★ ★

Festivals are not in short supply, either. Each June there is the National Exhibition of Carnations, a flower show of national artistic interest. Another festival is the Corpus Christi fiesta when the local inhabitants vie with each other to decorate the streets with artistic carpets of flowers.

If you come here from Aug. 23-27, there is the Fiesta Major, a spectacular display of fireworks and folk dancing. Each September comes the Fiesta of the Grape-Harvest, dedicated to praise of the local wines.

★ ★ ★

The museum enthusiasts can have a fascinating time in Sitges, which dates back to Roman times when it was known as the town of Subur.

Spanish Town 'Vast Solarium'

If you seek novelty, you'll find it in a quite unique collection of antique dolls. Here are nearly 350 dolls of all shapes and sizes from the 17th, 18 and 19th centuries.

Northward from Sitges is the Costa Brava, now one of the world's busiest holiday playgrounds, largely frequented by English, Scots and Irish, who have "discovered" the area in the last two years.

This is the lovely coast of Gerona, between Blanes and the French frontier, with 125 miles of magnificent Mediterrannean coastline beaches. The only snag about this region is that it has become somewhat overcrowded, particularly in the peak vacation months of June, July and August.

However, the vast increase in local tourism means that the many seaside villages and resorts, such as Tossa, Lloret, S'Agaro, and Palamos, have an ample supply of hotels and boarding-houses or pensions, large and small. The choice is wide.

Hospital Report Anti-Medicare

VANCOUVER (CP) — A special committee of the Canadian Hospital Association favors universal availability of health services—but not under government financing and control.

The committee, in a brief to the association's annual assembly in Vancouver, said government-only financing would lead to political interference and control.

Drink Prices Slashed As Tourist Come-on

ST. PIERRE, St. Pierre-Miquelon (CP)—An agreement has been reached by all liquor merchants on these French islands off Newfoundland's south coast to cut drastically the price of most wines and spirits as a further encouragement to the growing tourist trade.

The new prices, effective immediately, are about half the previous prices and are comparable to prices of more than 10 years ago. For instance, 40 ounces of Scotch whisky which previously sold for $6 now sells for $4.50. A well-known rum, previously $7.25 for 40 ounces, now sells for $4.

All-Radar Airport Aims to Handle 80 Planes an Hour

LONDON (UPI) — London's all-radar international airport, already one of the busiest and safest in the world, is spending $720,000 to become even busier and safer.

At peak periods the airport—officially named Heathrow—currently handles up to 64 planes an hour (better than one a minute) and it is aiming for 80.

There hasn't been a fatal accident at Heathrow in 15 years. Its enormous traffic took 9,500,000 passengers through the air terminal in 1964, involving 187,500 aircraft movements. On a round-the-clock basis that's more than one plane every three minutes, 24 hours a day.

In the plan to increase capacity to land or send off 80 planes an hour during the summer tourist season, officials are planning to remodernize Heathrow's complex radar control system—already considered by many pilots to be among the best.

Global Centre

The sprawling 4.2 square mile airport complex lies 14 miles west of central London. Up to 720 flights a day to and from all over the world are handled by the control tower crew. About half of them are jets and all of them — unlike some other large airports — land and take off under radar and instrument control even in clear weather.

"We're aiming at safety and even more safety. To get it, everything is put under radar control," said Ray Kirk, airport chief of air traffic control.

Even the trucks that might have to venture out on the runways to repair the pavements or do other maintenance work are under the watchful beam of the radar ground control system, as are the planes themselves when moving along the ground.

While airborne, the planes are under radar control and instruments even in the bright sunny weather that often smiles on Britain's airfields, between the less frequent but more publicized fogs.

"We feel it's safer that way. Pilots of modern planes are too busy to look out the window," said Kirk, himself a veteran pilot and Second World War RAF control officer.

Sixteen-Man Crew

Keeping watch on pilots through radar scopes and the floor-to-ceiling windows of the control tower is a 16-man crew that begins shepherding the approaching planes into their landings when they come within 50 miles of London.

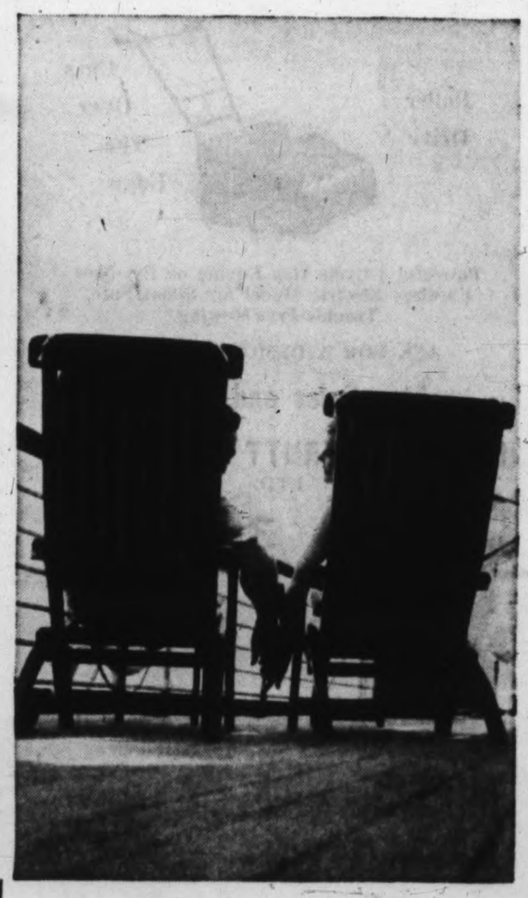

Using two-way radio and radar, the controllers direct each plane into its assigned approach path and runway. The closer a plane is to the airport, the more detailed the radar scope used to follow it. The control crew uses the radar to back up the pilot who follows the instruments that position him as he glides onto the runway.

On the ground, runway lights controlled by pushbuttons on a large control tower panel guide the planes as they taxi to their unloading or takeoff spots.

The $720,000 remodernization program is to install daylight radar scopes that can be easily seen in bright light.

"In this business one can never afford to be too satisfied or smug about safety," said traffic control chief Kirk.

Hamburg Amphibious City

By GUY RYAN

HAMBURG (CNS) — There are more ways to see this amphibious city than you have time for.

There is the harbor tour, ferry tour, railway tour, aerial tour and the Alster bus tour around the lake, river and canals.

Or you can strike out on your own, walking and taxi-cabbing.

Hamburg is Germany's second largest city and its largest seaport, with more than 200 steamship lines sailing to 1,100 ports of the world, and nine airlines.

It has a population of 1,850,000 and 59 foreign consulates.

OLD AND NEW

It is a city of the old and the new—and although a vast industrial complex it exudes history, culture and flowers. It is built between the Elbe River and the Alster, a quiet lake bordered by parks and promenades, only a half hour from the fast-paced city.

Its harbor is a city in itself.

You can penetrate the strange and distant places found along its quays, streets and canals on the harbor tour. Many of the buildings in the lowlands of the city are set on piles.

10-MILE WALK

The Elbe, too, has its promenade. A riverside walk wends for 10 miles through parks and gardens, thatched cottages and fine country houses, as steamers laden with the world's commerce glide carefully up and down the neighboring river.

Many new buildings line the thoroughfares — rebuilt after the bomb damage of 1943 and 1944. The general appearance of the central part of the city, harking back to the middle 1800s, was preserved, although heavily damaged.

In many sections, residential areas were razed to the ground. Of 563,000 houses in the city, 295,000 were totally destroyed. And in rebuilding, emphasis was placed on open spaces for parks and gardens. In these new districts, apartment houses were given spacious settings to give light and fresh air.

People of Hamburg are rightfully proud of their famed botanical gardens and the botanical museum in the heart of the city.

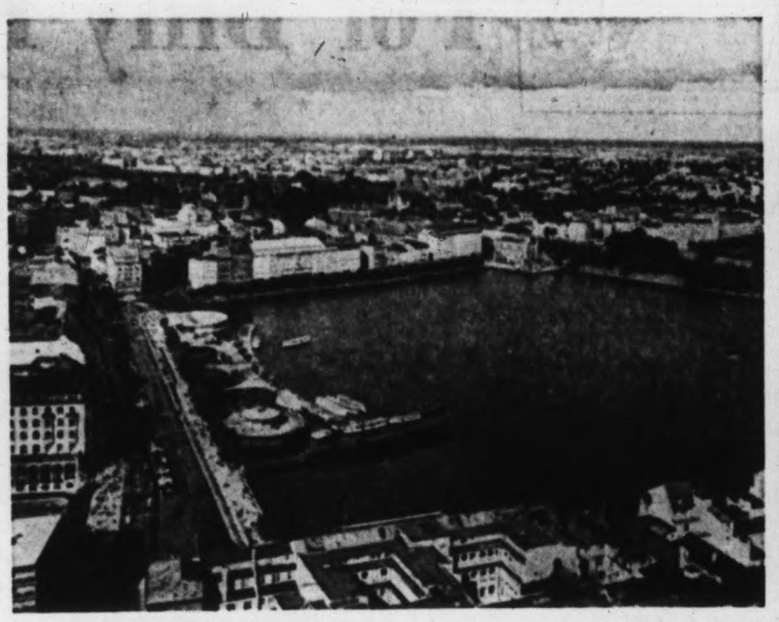

Flower boxes, with a profusion of colorful blossoms spilling out, are a common sight along the sidewalks in the business section.

Among the towers that pierce the city's skyline are those of five main churches and that of the Town Hall, government centre, built between 1886 and 1897 under the guidance of nine architects. It still rests solidly on a grid of pilings—4,000 huge tree trunks driven into the marshy soil of the Alster bog. Tours are conducted through the building every half hour.

All the churches were damaged in the war and all have been rebuilt except one. The ruins of St. Nicholas were left as a war memorial.

At St. Michael, an elevator will whisk you to its tower for a panoramic view of the city for free.

But it will cost you one mark (25 cents) to ride down.

Jungfernsteig, Hamburg's smartest street, borders one side of beautiful Alster Lake. Like London's Piccadilly and Paris' Place L'Opera, Jungfernsteig is one of world's famed crossroads.

Even Policemen Get Lost Here!

University of Victoria undergraduate Robin Jeffrey is on an extended tour of Europe.

By ROBIN JEFFREY

AMSTERDAM (Special)—There's an old ditty which advises, "If you don't know the way, ask a policeman." And normally that's sound counsel for the tourist lost in a European city.

But not always.

Travelling on a conducted tour brings together a group of people whose capacities for getting lost are almost infinite — even to the extent of violating the maxim about the policeman.

SUPPOSITION

Amsterdam, where Princess Margaret has just visited in conjunction with a British trade exhibition, is supposed to be the city where no one can go astray because all its canals lead to the central station.

However, one first has to find the canals, and this was the problem encountered by one of our tour party after walking through the city for about half an hour.

Discovering he was lost he tried to retrace his steps and when this manoeuvre failed, was delighted to see three uniformed policemen standing on a street corner.

He approached them, and in his best halting Dutch asked, "Can you tell me the way to the square?"

The three policemen looked at each other. Then one turned to his mate. "Cor blimey, Bill," he said, "here's a bloke looking for Trafalgar Square."

And turning to the traveller he explained, "We're just trying to figure out how to get back. We're over here from London with the princess—we're lost too."

That linguistic tangle was quite enough, but the same evening the same Canadian boarded a tram after a soccer game.

SCORE?

"Score?" queried the man sitting next to him, and the cooperative Canuck immediately went through a long account of the match in stumbling German.

At the end of his discourse, the stranger said, "Och, can they no play the game here either—they're as bad as the Rangers."

He was a holidaying bus conductor from Glasgow.

Emergency In Two Areas

SALISBURY (Reuters) — A state of emergency has been declared in two remote areas of Rhodesian where nationalist Negro leaders are being held in detention.

An official announcement said it would remain in force for three months. The areas are part of the Lupane district, northeast of Bulawayo, and part of the Nuanetsi district in the Lowveld.

449 'Fifths' In Three Days

CHICAGO (UPI) The House committee on un-American activities, here to probe alleged Communist activities in the Chicago area, wound up its investigation Friday.

In three days of hearings, there was testimony from two paid FBI informers, a total of 449 "fifth amendments" from 10 witnesses, walkouts by three subpoenaed witnesses and 70 demonstrators arrested.

This Is Bargain Year For Sports Facilities

By AL ARNASON
Last of Three Articles

This is bargain year in recreation for Greater Victoria because next year the price will be up by more than 100 per cent.

Centennial project grants available this year from the federal and provincial governments are enough to pay more than half the cost of a recreation project.

But there is a time limit imposed to make sure the project is ready for Canada's centennial year, 1967.

The grants are tied to the number of people in the community (as of 1963). The federal government will grant $1 per person and the province adds 60 cents. But to get it, the municipality must spend $1.40 per capita.

In Greater Victoria, the contributions of all three governments would total almost $420,000 — enough for a massive start on long-neglected recreational facilities.

The contracts for the grants from the senior governments have a lot of conditions attached to keep municipalities from putting the money to inappropriate uses.

For a start, the province has to approve the project selected. Then the project must be finished not until late 1966, but before the end of 1967 "to contribute the proper atmosphere."

Flood of Projects

Already we have problems.

There are 31 project suggestions now being weighed by a sub-committee of the inter-municipal centennial committee.

The committee, headed by Esquimalt Coun. James Bryant, faces a problem of timing. It doesn't want to stand in the way of any suggestions being made, so it moved the May 1 suggestion deadline up to June 1.

At the same time, Mr. Bryant has to keep an eye on the calendar, because there is a lot of red tape to be unravelled even after his selection proposal is made to the centennial committee.

Approval must come from the centennial committee, each of the municipalities involved, and the province.

Then, if it is a substantial structure, such as a stadium, further hasty steps must be taken. A site chosen, purchase negotiated, architects' plans drawn up and approved by everyone in the chain, contracts let, and construction started in 1966 and finished in 1967.

Can it be done?

The experts say yes. But there is no time to waste.

Another point is that not all the suggestions are for recreational projects.

Schools, Parks Too

Two are for schools and two for regional parks. They seem unlikely choices because of another restriction attached to the provincial grant.

The province won't make a grant for a project already eligible for other provincial grants.

Listed under the "educational" heading are an aquarium, a performing arts centre, an arts competition, a planetarium and a university residence.

Under highway-improvement there are three suggestions: a centennial parkway, Inner Harbor development and planting young maple trees.

The miscellaneous suggestions include a documentary film, a breakwater railing and an agricultural and livestock building.

The big two projects in the recreational group are a sports stadium complex and beautification of the Gorge waterway.

The way it looks now, Saanich likes the sports complex, Esquimalt councillors think the Gorge redevelopment on their northern border would be a fine project, and Victoria has gone on record as being near a decision to go ahead and rebuild its Royal Athletic Park bleachers, destroyed in a fire last summer.

There are a lot of other recreational project suggestions too, including development of Royal Athletic Park, the McRae estate, a glassed-in swimming pool, an aquatic theatre, glass-domed scenic launches, preservation of Blenkinsop Valley.

In the broader sense, many of the educational and other types of projects could come under the "recreation" heading.

Pageantry Showplace

Meanwhile, Victoria city fathers have another problem. They need a showplace for the other half of the centennial celebrations—the pageantry.

Budgeted separately from the project price, the pageantry part of the celebrations includes possible appearances of the RCMP Musical Ride and perhaps a military tattoo.

The trouble is that the city has no place to put them on.

Pardon the knowing smile. But if that little situation doesn't put the finger on our lack of recreational facilities, nothing does.

The big question about Royal Athletic Park is whether the city will pull out of any inter-municipal project and use its grants for the repair job.

Even if the park is brought back to life, it isn't likely to be any warmer than it has been in the past when fans gave up regularly before half-time.

And even if it were warm, the problem of inadequate parking facilities won't be overcome.

Third of the Money

Presumably the decision will await selection of the inter-municipal project by the centennial committees.

But if Victoria pulls out, she takes close to a third of the money out of the inter-municipal project.

If she stays in the co-operative plan, she must bear the entire cost of the Royal Athletic Park reconstruction without the aid of grants from the senior governments.

Saanich has already gone on record in favor of a sport complex. The move backs up five similar project suggestions on file at centennial committee headquarters.

The strongest of these is the brief submitted by the Centennial Stadium Committee of seven men, each of whom is acting on behalf of one or the other of most of the main organized sports of the area.

The letters that accompanied the stadium brief are bound to be impressive to municipal authorities. They show the lower Island's entire sports community is behind the project.

The backers include everyone who plays or watches football, soccer, baseball, track and field and rugby.

Strong Baseball Support

Little League baseball's letter of support alone swings 3,500 boys and as many as 6,000 parents behind the plan, says president Wilf Cain.

Briefly, the stadium committee wants a full-sized stadium built on a 25-acre site. It is to contain 5,000 seats to begin with, all under cover, but capable of being expanded eventually to seat 20,000.

The project would also include concession facilities, a track, training and change rooms, plus press and broadcast facilities.

The obvious problems of using the same area for varied sports were met by the committee with this argument:

"The committee is aware that soccer, rugby and track facilities do not lend themselves to having superimposed thereon a baseball diamond, and therefore adequate space on any site must provide for a baseball diamond with some permanent seats and movable bleachers which could be used for baseball (during the season) and in winter could be moved to the football, soccer and rugby field."

The committee added:

"The site should be large enough also for practice fields and eventual development of a field house for indoor training, indoor track meets and basketball tournaments."

As If Planned Together

The sports fraternity and Saanich council have pretty well identical plans in mind for the stadium.

After hearing Saanich planner Thomas Loney describe the community's proposal at a centennial meeting recently, stadium committee secretary Arthur Burgess commented, "It was almost as if we had sat down and planned it together."

Both groups have avoided public estimates of costs involved, at least partly because of the uncertainty of land values on the favored two sites picked from a possible 16 throughout the four communities.

There is no guarantee the whole idea of a co-operative centennial project won't founder in the stormy seas of municipal self-interest.

But one thing seems certain. If no action is taken on the large projects during the centennial bargain year, the chances are that children now in school will grow up without them.

Just Two Stops For Billy Foster

* * *

From AP Reports

INDIANAPOLIS—Rookie driver Billy Foster of Victoria said Friday that tests had indicated he can count on having to make only two pit stops Monday in the Indianapolis 500-Mile car race.

Foster, the first Canadian to ever qualify for the "500" classic, will use a fuel blend which is 90 per cent alcohol and 10 per cent nietro. Foster has a 60-gallon fuel tank on his rear-engined Robbins-Offenhauser.

GAS BLENDS

Some mechanics on V-8 engines in the race have been doubtful they could get a three-mile-a-gallon average on alcohol and will go with gasoline blends.

Two-time winner A. J. Foyt of Houston will use gasoline to power his Lotus-Ford. Although alcohol produces more horsepower, it burns more rapidly and does not provide the economy of gasoline.

For the speedy rear-engine Fords such as Foyt and seven of the first nine drivers will handle—but not Foster — this would mean more than the mandatory two pit stops.

Most of the drivers are expected to use a blend of about 80 per cent gasoline and 20 per cent alcohol.

FIERY DEATH

The problem concerning the use of gasoline and alcohol is being considered carefully by the crews. The volatile gasoline was used by drivers Eddie Sachs and Dave MacDonald who were killed in a fiery second-lap crash last year.

Foster and his wife, Beverly, have been staying in a rented mobile home outside Indianapolis. Billy said Friday that the long wait since he qualified May 15 is pretty tedious.

"I feel fine," he added. "And I've been killing time by playing golf. We found some minor problems when we tore down the car for a checkup after the trials, but we'll be ready to go in carburetion tests Saturday morning."

Meanwhile, weary mechanics tightened the last safety bolts Friday on about a million dollars' worth of racing machinery which 22 veterans and 11 rookies will drive in the 49th annual race.

The last chance to check out the cars at racing speed will be today, and all 33 qualifiers appear to be ready.

Cardinals Downed in Dome

Houston Astros handed St. Louis Cardinals their second straight loss under the Astrodrome Friday night, 3-2 in 12 innings, to hamper the world series champion's attempt to close in on Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League.

First baseman Walter Bond of the Astros, who has failed to hit with power this season, doubled home Jim Wynn in the bottom of the 12th with the winning run.

Wynn had singled with one out off Cardinal reliever Ron Taylor, and raced home as Bond lashed the winning hit to left field.

In the bottom of the ninth inning, third baseman Bob Asptromonte of the Astros sent the game into extra innings with a home run into the left field seats.

The loss left the Cardinals in third place, 2½ games back of the Dodgers, who dropped a 5-4 decision to Milwaukee Braves at Los Angeles.

The Braves scored five runs in the fifth inning off loser Claude Osteen and reliever Howie Reed.

Mack Jones climaxed the uprising with a two-run single off Reed for the typing and winning runs.

At the other end of the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates socked New York Mets, 6-1, for their seventh straight win and moved out of the cellar ahead of the Mets.

In the American League, Chicago White Sox stayed one-half game ahead of Minnesota Twins with a 2-0 victory over the hapless New York Yankees.

Joe Horlen snapped Chicago's three-game losing streak by limiting the eighth-place Yankees to six hits.

Singles by John Romano and Don Buford in the sixth inning were the first hits off New York starter Bill Stafford and accounted for the first run.

Minnesota downed Washington Senators, 4-1, behind the combined five-hit pitching of rookie Dave Boswell and veteran John Klippstein. Boswell allowed just one hit through the first 5⅔ innings before leaving with a blistered finger.

Right fielder Tony Oliva, the rookie of the year last season, drove in three runs for the Twins with a home run and a single.

Shawnigan Lake Posts Top Time

ST. CATHERINES, Ont. — Shawnigan Lake Boys School of Vancouver Island clocked the best time for the mile here Friday during the opening day of the 20th annual Canadian scholastic rowing championships.

Shawnigan's time of 4:58.5 in the mile put them in the final today against favored St. Catherines Collegiate in the heavy eights.

Stroke Paul Baylis set a rating of 36 through the body of the course and finished at 40 for a one-length margin over the rest when Shawnigan won.

All crews are competing for a grant of $6,400 from the amateur sports fund to compete at England's Henley Royal Regatta.

Tommy Bolt Leads

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The race for the $15,700 top money in the $87,500 "500" festival open golf tournament started like a poor man's parade, with veteran Tommy Bolt in the lead.

Bolt, who took a one-stroke lead over six other hungry contenders by shooting a three-under-par 68 at Greentree Country Club Thursday, could nearly triple his previous take for the season by winning Sunday. His PGA winnings this year total $5,140.

Bolt's closest pursuers included only one of the 44 top winners of the 1965 money list—Bill Martindale, who stands eighth on winnings of $23,365.67.

Among the other two-under-par 69 shooters, Claude King is 45th in winnings, Joe Campbell is 54th and Doug Ford is 55th.

Doug Sanders, second in earnings this year, withdrew on the 17th hole because of a thumb injury. He was four over par for the distance, including a nine on the 12th hole.

Ranjit Dillon Returns

Ranjit Dillon will be back in the lineup tonight when Victoria junior Shamrocks play host to New Westminster Salmonbellies at 8 in an Inter-City Junior Lacrosse League game at Memorial Arena.

Dillon broke a finger May 20 at New Westminster while playing for the senior Rocks and missed last Monday's 7-6 loss here against the Salmonbellies.

Both teams have won four of five games to date. This will be New Westminster's last visit here during the regular schedule.

Claremont To Repeat Today?

Claremont, winner of the handicap aggregate trophy Thursday in the Victoria and district senior high school meet, will take part today in a three-area track and field meet at Victoria high school, beginning at 10 a.m.

Taking part in the meet will be senior high schools from the districts of Sooke, Saanich and Salt Spring Island.

Thursday, Claremont won the handicap aggregate, awarded annually to the school with the most points in ratio to school enrolment.

Junior Loop Fined $4,400

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Thursday imposed a $4,400 fine on the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League for its part in delaying Memorial Cup playoffs this spring.

New Westminster Royals, B.C. champions, were kept waiting eight days while the SJHL decided a champion in a six-team playoff.

Secretary-manager Gordon Juckes of the CAHA said the fine will be paid to the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association to compensate for the cost of delaying the quarter-final series.

IN WRITING

At the concluding session of the annual meeting late Thursday night at the Empress Hotel, the CAHA ruled that minor hockey players will be required to get written consent from parents or guardians before being allowed to play hockey within the CAHA.

The forms would be a safeguard against possible liability in case of injury to a player.

JOINS COLLEGES

The CAHA also approved affiliation with the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union. The University of Victoria is not a member of the CIAA.

CAHA executives denied statements that Larry Regan would be given the job as coach-manager of the Canadian national hockey team.

"We only got permission to hire a coach today," said Juckes. "There have been no names brought up at all."

For Sunday's Playoff

United Gets Goalie Back

Regular Larry DeCosta will be back in goal Sunday when Victoria United plays Vancouver Canadians in a sudden-death semi-final game in the Pacific Coast Soccer League playoffs at Vancouver.

DeCosta missed United's final two games of the PCSL season with injuries, but club officials pronounced him ready for action following practice sessions this week.

Just in case DeCosta encounters further trouble Sunday, reserve goalkeeper Dave Clarke will make the trip.

IN FORM

United manager Fred Magee indicated that the team has plenty of good spirits and feels a victory against the Canadians.

Victoria finished third during the season and Canadians second.

First-place Vancouver Firefighters and fourth-place Vancouver Columbus meet today at Vancouver in the other sudden-death semi-final.

CLUB QUITS

United is also in the Province Cup semi-finals after Vancouver Portuguese dropped out of the competition in the quarter-finals. Date for Victoria's next game has yet to be announced.

In the final game of the PCSL season Thursday at Vancouver, Firefighters edged UBC Thunderbirds 1-0 on a goal by left winger Tom Millar.

Bobby Smith of Columbus won the goal-scoring with 19, three more than Art Hughes of Firefighters and four ahead of Jim Blundell of the Firemen.

That Six-Inch Punch

Class or Glass?

NEW YORK (AP) — Yes, Virginia, that was a right-hand punch from Cassius Clay that sent Sonny Liston down to the deck for keeps.

We saw the punch at the ringside at Lewiston, Me., Tuesday night, and we saw it again on slow-motion movies at a studio Thursday night.

The way Cassius tells it, Sonny was coming in to him and the punch had the impact of "two cars colliding at 50 miles an hour."

SAW IT AGAIN

The way we saw it, next to the ring at Lewiston, and twice in the studio, Clay landed a flicking punch that travelled about six inches.

Fight films may be seen over channel 8 at 4:30 p.m. and channel 4, at 5 p.m. today, according to the networks concerned.

Sonny's head shook a little and then he fell on the canvas as if he had been hit with a hammer.

This either rates young Cassius with the greatest six-inch hitters of all time or relegates the once-fearsome Liston into the glass-chin class with Floyd Patterson.

Patterson is the two-time heavyweight champion who fell before Liston in 2:06 and 2:10 of the first round and who is now seeking a shot at Clay.

It was incredible to anyone who has seen Liston in action that he should be felled for 17 seconds or so by such a seemingly light blow from Clay.

Liston never had been floored before. Marty Marshall had broken his jaw in 1964, and Liston kept on his feet and fought back in his only defeat until he met the dancing and prancing Clay.

NAILED HARD

He was nailed on the jaw by the pistol-packing Cleveland Williams, probably the hardest-hitting heavyweight in the last 10 years, and went on to flatten the China-chinned Texan in three and two rounds.

It could be that old age finally caught up to Liston. He is listed as 31, but he looked about 51 at the weigh-in for the Tuesday fight.

'Not Karate'

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay scoffed Friday at reports that he knocked out Sonny Liston with a karate blow in their heavyweight title bout last Tuesday night in Lewiston, Me.

"The secret power behind my punch is Almighty God, Allah," the champion said during an autograph-signing session at a Black Muslim restaurant in Harlem.

Clay, who prefers to be called by his Muslim name, Muhammad Ali, disclaimed any knowledge of karate, the Oriental style of self defence supposedly popular among Muslims.

Several karate experts have contended the knockout punch—a short right to the cheekbone—was a karate manoeuver.

Clay, ringed by Muslim friends, a crowd of about 100 admiring youngsters and reporters, displayed a picture of Muslim Leader Elijah Muhammad in the sect's newspaper and declared: "The secret behind the punch!"

King Fisherman: It's Picking Up

Salmon fishing is picking up and, with any sort of calm weather, the Oak Bay to Sooke waterfront should be worth a try for big springs this weekend.

Reports are still coming in of big concentrations of coho in the Swiftsure area at the entrance to Juan de Fuca Strait, much to the annoyance of commercial trollers who are not allowed to take coho yet.

Good news for salmon anglers is that B.C. Forest Products has built a double concrete ramp at Port Renfrew, just inside the small boat breakwater.

Kamloops Hot Spot

Fire Season Costs $20,000 in Month

B.C.'s fire season is less than a month old, but it's already cost the government $20,000.

A forest service spokesman said Friday 341 fires have occurred in the province since the season began May 1—about 70 more than the same period last year.

COST SOARS

Moreover, the $20,000 cost of battling the blazes is $7,000 higher than last year.

Kamloops forest district has been the province's hot spot so far, with 165 fires and $7,000 in costs. Vancouver district is the lowest, spending only $900 to handle its 28 fires.

The spokesman blamed "cowboys, campers and warm weather" for the fire increase.

Abandoned campfires have been one of the forest service's biggest worries.

PERMIT NEEDED

Failure to put out a campfire can result in a fine of up to $300.

Anyone wishing to light an outdoor fire for any purpose within half a mile of any woods must have a campfire permit.

Sixty-one fires are still burning and the outlook is for a continuing drying trend, increasing the fire hazard throughout most of the province.

Swan Song Attacks

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — B.C.'s deputy minister of lands and forests, in a speech he called his "swan song," Friday lashed out at federal forestry policies, federal-provincial cost-sharing programs and the B.C. Forest Service budget.

In a speech to the Northern Lumbermen's Association convention here, R. G. McKee said forestry is "low man on the totem pole in Ottawa" and was no even discussed during a meeting recently called by Mr. Laing.

"The fact that the federal minister (Maurice Sauve) and his deputy were both too busy to attend may have had something to do with it."

Mr. McKee said the federal share of Canadian forestry budgets has remained static for the past four years.

"Our gross estimates for 1965 are up $3,500,000 over the 1964 actual figures.

"Inflation alone accounts for another $500,000," he said.

He said much of the federal branch's "multi - million - dollar budget" has been earmarked for "agricultural projects" and suggested the money should be spent to fill B.C.'s need for more administration and forestry work.

"We need thousands of miles of access roads" to service a potential 11 mills going into northern B.C. in 1965, he said.

In his final swipe at the federal department, Mr. McKee said there are rumors the federal department plans to double its B.C. research staff "to find more bugs and more diseased trees in more inaccessible areas where we can't do anything anyway."

Battle of the Bugs

By M. V. CHESNUT

The rose is unquestionably the queen of flowers and her virtues are so outstanding that no garden can be considered properly furnished without at least a couple of specimens. Trouble is, she is just as popular with the bugs as she is with the gardeners, and the rose-growing season is one long unending battle against insect pests.

The greenfly or aphid takes top priority from now until early autumn. These plant lice are always found on the upper part of the bush, sucking the sap from the succulent young shoot tips, flower stems and green buds, and unless kept under control, you will have weak growth, distorted flowers, and a complete loss of many flower buds.

Another bad actor is the thrip, a sap-sucking insect so small that its presence is seldom suspected until actual plant damage is seen. These tiny creatures, hardly any bigger than specks of dust, delight in finding their way into unopened flower buds, and whenever you have rose buds that stubbornly refuse to open, you can chalk up thrips as your No. 1 suspect.

Spring and early summer are the peak periods for aphid and thrip activity. Hot weather encourages rapid and prolific breeding, and both these bugs increase at a prodigious rate when conditions are favorable. Aphids are quite vulnerable to the right kind of spray or dust, and treatment should be started on a regular basis as soon as the creatures are noticed and repeated every few days, as new hatches are born. Even if you succeed in killing every single aphid on your bushes, winged generations of greenfly will arrive from weeds and from unsprayed plants, and are often transferred from one plant to another by ants.

Thrips are more difficult to control with sprays or dusts as their favorite habitat is INSIDE a rose bud, where surface poisons cannot reach them.

While in past years it has always been standard procedure to spray or dust the roses once a week to keep these and other pests under control, things are getting easier for the home gardener with the coming of systemic insecticides. This is a new concept in pest control, in which a chemical is used which is absorbed into the plant's system, rendering its sap and leaves poisonous to all insects that feed upon them.

Such insecticides, because they are INSIDE the plant, are not washed off by hose or rain and continue to work very much longer than conventional sprays and dusts. Also, they reach thrips inside to flower buds, grubs inside rose galls — those prickly swellings or growths on the stems — and leaf miners within the tissues of the leaves.

One of the new systemic insecticides available this year is Cygon 2-E, put out by Cyanamid of Canada. This liquid comes with an applicator in the bottle, something like the swab with which old-fashioned liquid shoe polish was applied, and the chemical is swabbed on the stems of the rose plants and is absorbed through the bark and into the sap. Cygon 2-E is recommended, too, for the protection of birches and lilacs against mining or tunnelling caterpillars.

The Green Cross people have what they call Flower and Ornamental Spray which contains a systemic insecticide as one of its ingredients, also Gardol Rose Spray, similar but with the addition of fungicides to control mildew and black spot. These preparations are applied to the foliage with a sprayer.

★ ★ ★

Newest sample to reach me is Protexall, put out by the Bayer people and distributed in Canada by Plant Products Co., Toronto. This is a granular product which is scratched into the ground around the plant and watered in, and is taken up by the roots and into the sap, rendering all parts of the plant poisonous to all sucking insects. It is claimed that one application will protect a plant for a month to six weeks.

JOHN CROSBY Sees Stronghold Tremble

Women Get Out of Hand!

LONDON — Jean Shrimpton is on the cover of Newsweek —as she is on the cover of everything else—and there's another story about her inside Esquire.

"She is the embodiment," says Newsweek, "of America's current love affair with people and things British, an affair which until very recently has had masculine objects, James Bond, the Beatles, Albert Finney, Peter O'Toole."

It goes deeper than that. Little Miss Shrimpton is the embodiment of a growing feminization of an island that has been always known as a man's island. The dolls are taking over England as they have taken over America.

Look at the record. A recent report, "Women in Britain," revealed that British women now own $64,000,000,000 of Britain's total individual wealth—$159,000,000,000 — and actually own more government and municipal bonds, more National Savings, more shares in building societies than the men.

England has always been a place where women were kept properly in their place, which is to say the kitchen, the garden, and the front parlor. And if they were let out at all, it was only to pour tea on the vicarage lawn. Not any more.

★ ★ ★

There are almost 2,000 women lawyers in England. There are 16,000 British women in the armed forces and there are three women Lord Mayors. One-third of Britain's 670,000 civil servants are girls and more and more are becoming scientists and engineers, professions that used to be sacred to men.

The girls are engaged in just about every sport except boxing, wrestling, and football.

The bars are falling everywhere. For centuries a man's club was the place where a man couldn't be pursued by his wife, his secretary, or his mistress. But now a lot of the clubs are adding women's annexes, women's bars, or women's nights. The female foot is in the door.

Economics cry the old members in despair. They had to let the girls in to help pay the bills.

The Army and Navy Club in the heart of clubland on Pall Mall opened its doors to both sexes and went all over feminine in decor. Even Boodle's, Beau Brummell's old club, opened an annex for women, a disaster comparable to the loss of India.

Of course, it's just an annex and there is no communicating door between the club and the annex. But still . . .

Even the Cambridge Union, the debating society once sacrosanct to men, has opened its doors and women are now allowed to open their pretty little yaps and argue. The first woman given the floor, a girl named Susan Crombie, spoke up, significantly enough, on behalf of divorce.

As well she might, because women are doing much better in the divorce courts, too.

An article in the Law Society Gazette by R. L. Archdale points out that women have got much the best of it in the matter of legal cruelty. The mere fact that a wife is unhappy puts her halfway to a divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

Cruelty in law, in fact, doesn't resemble any other kind of cruelty. A husband must be sexually satisfactory, constant, affectionate, tolerant, good-humored, gentle, sober and industrious. If he isn't, he may very well be legally cruel and therefore divorceable.

★ ★ ★

The same standards by no means apply to a British woman. A wife is not necessarily cruel if she nags unless the nagging is persistent, spiteful and unprovoked, whereas a man can be domineering (i.e., cruel) if he simply tries to make his wife live up to standards he learned at his mother's knee.

A man can be divorced for non-support and imprisoned for failing alimony payments —but attempts to prove cruelty against "lazy, sluttish English wives" have never succeeded.

A man's island, eh? Actually, it still is, but another 10 years of crumbling barriers and . . .

What Price Freedom?

By SYDNEY HARRIS

If, as I suggested yesterday, we cannot agree or define or pin down such seemingly obvious terms as "marriage," and "unemployment" and "delinquency," what chance is there that we can agree on what we mean by so broad and loose a word as "freedom?"

One reason we cannot understand, or come to grips with, the problems of peoples in underdeveloped countries is our lack of a common basis (and common experience) for talking with one another.

What I mean has been succinctly expressed by Felix Greene in his book, The Wall Has Two Sides, published a couple of years ago. Writing about Red China, he explains:

"When a Chinese worker or peasant says he is freer today than he has ever been in his life, he means it . . . Perhaps he does not mean it in our way, for he has never known the particular forms of political and social freedom which have been the product of our own historical past and which are the fruit of our relative physical security.

"A Chinese uses the word 'freedom' in a very personal, down-to-earth sense. He is not talking about abstractions, but about experience. He means that he is at last free to eat, and not to starve; he is free of the landlord and the money-lender.

★ ★ ★

"He is free to learn to read and write, he is free to develop skills that would otherwise have remained hidden; he is free to send his children to school, and when they are ill, there is a doctor to help make them well; he is free to look at the future with hope, not despair. For him, these all all new freedoms."

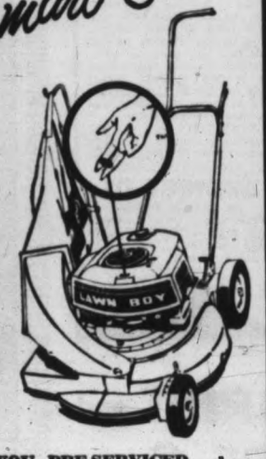

This is how communism "conquers" underdeveloped and poverty-stricken nations—by abrogating all political and individual freedom (which means little to a starving man) and replacing it with food, housing, medical care, schools, and technical training.

It strikes a bargain that the peasants and workers are only too glad to pay—for the "freedom" they have given up is one they have never been allowed to exercise.

Western capitalism has not understood this simple equation. Our political and individual freedoms are precious to us because they are the "surplus value" of a society that has never known famine and pestilence and tyranny as a normal way of life. But a hungry man, as Cato said long ago, has no ears; he votes with his stomach.

It is the human person who needs and desires our sort of freedom; but we do not become persons until our animal wants are gratified, until we no longer live from day to day and hand to mouth. Communism appeals to the biological man; we to the political man. At this stage of the world's development, it seems an unequal contest.

Perkins Needs An Adult Role

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

NEW YORK (NANA) — Tony Perkins can use an adult role—badly. Now in his mid 30s, the likeable Mr. Perkins has made a specialty of playing wide-eyed or psychotic young men who are doomed to adolescence for the rest of their cinematic lives. His latest, The Fool Killer, was previewed recently. This picture for Eli Landau is not going to change Tony's image. The lack of bookings for the picture had disappointed the lanky star who began at the top a decade ago in Friendly Persuasion and has not yet succeeded in persuading a producer that he is a fully grown man. A strong play on Broadway could fix this, but where do you find a good meaty drama? Don't call me. Call him.

★ ★ ★

Arlene Dahl and Matthew Kelly of San Francisco are reportedly on the verge of matrimony. Arlene, one of the great beauties, but not a great actress, has been flying hither and yon, mostly yon, to publicize her book, Always Ask A Man . . . Anthony Franciosa made his first trip to Paris earlier in the week, with his wife and children. Next stop, Melina Mercouri and Sandra Dee with whom he will co-star in Portugal and Rome in Welcome Mr. Beddoes.

★ ★ ★

James Mason is the most family-minded man I know. I mean with his parents, not his ex-wife Pamela. He was wanted at the Cannes film festival to appear with his recent movie, Piano Mechanique, but it was his birthday, and James preferred to spend the day with his parents in Switzerland. Had he but adored Pam with half the zeal he displays them.

★ ★ ★

Bill Marshall, now married to Ginger Rogers—as of going to press that is—will have a wedding in his family —20-year-old Mike Marshall, his son, with Michele Morgan, is about to take the big step with a singer who goes by the single name of Sophie.

Women Get Out of Hand!

LONDON — Jean Shrimpton is on the cover of Newsweek —as she is on the cover of everything else—and there's another story about her inside Esquire.

"She is the embodiment," says Newsweek, "of America's current love affair with people and things British, an affair which until very recently has had masculine objects, James Bond, the Beatles, Albert Finney, Peter O'Toole."

It goes deeper than that. Little Miss Shrimpton is the embodiment of a growing feminization of an island that has been always known as a man's island. The dolls are taking over England as they have taken over America.

★ ★ ★

Look at the record. A recent report, "Women in Britain," revealed that British women now own $64,000,000,000 of Britain's total individual wealth—$159,000,000,000 — and actually own more government and municipal bonds, more National Savings, more shares in building societies than the men.

England has always been a place where women were kept properly in their place, which is to say the kitchen, the garden, and the front parlor. And if they were let out at all, it was only to pour tea on the vicarage lawn. Not any more.

★ ★ ★

There are almost 2,000 women lawyers in England. There are 16,000 British women in the armed forces and there are three women Lord Mayors. One-third of Britain's 670,000 civil servants are girls and more and more are becoming scientists and engineers, professions that used to be sacred to men.

The girls are engaged in just about every sport except boxing, wrestling, and football.

The bars are falling everywhere. For centuries a man's club was the place where a man couldn't be pursued by his wife, his secretary, or his mistress. But now a lot of the clubs are adding women's annexes, women's bars, or women's nights. The female foot is in the door.

Economics cry the old members in despair. They had to let the girls in to help pay the bills.

The Army and Navy Club in the heart of clubland on Pall Mall opened its doors to both sexes and went all over feminine in decor. Even Boodle's, Beau Brummell's old club, opened an annex for women, a disaster comparable to the loss of India.

Of course, it's just an annex and there is no communicating door between the club and the annex. But still . . .

Even the Cambridge Union, the debating society once sacrosanct to men, has opened its doors and women are now allowed to open their pretty little yaps and argue. The first woman given the floor, a girl named Susan Crombie, spoke up, significantly enough, on behalf of divorce.

★ ★ ★

As well she might, because women are doing much better in the divorce courts, too.

An article in the Law Society Gazette by R. L. Archdale points out that women have got much the best of it in the matter of legal cruelty. The mere fact that a wife is unhappy puts her halfway to a divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

Cruelty in law, in fact, doesn't resemble any other kind of cruelty. A husband must be sexually satisfactory, constant, affectionate, tolerant, good-humored, gentle, sober and industrious. If he isn't, he may very well be legally cruel and therefore divorceable.

★ ★ ★

The same standards by no means apply to a British woman. A wife is not necessarily cruel if she nags unless the nagging is persistent, spiteful and unprovoked, whereas a man can be domineering (i.e., cruel) if he simply tries to make his wife live up to standards he learned at his mother's knee.

A man can be divorced for non-support and imprisoned for failing alimony payments —but attempts to prove cruelty against "lazy, sluttish English wives" have never succeeded.

A man's island, eh? Actually, it still is, but another 10 years of crumbling barriers and . . .

What Price Freedom?

By SYDNEY HARRIS

If, as I suggested yesterday, we cannot agree or define or pin down such seemingly obvious terms as "marriage," and "unemployment" and "delinquency," what chance is there that we can agree on what we mean by so broad and loose a word as "freedom?"

One reason we cannot understand, or come to grips with, the problems of peoples in underdeveloped countries is our lack of a common basis (and common experience) for talking with one another.

What I mean has been succinctly expressed by Felix Greene in his book, The Wall Has Two Sides, published a couple of years ago. Writing about Red China, he explains:

"When a Chinese worker or peasant says he is freer today than he has ever been in his life, he means it . . . Perhaps he does not mean it in our way, for he has never known the particular forms of political and social freedom which have been the product of our own historical past and which are the fruit of our relative physical security.

"A Chinese uses the word 'freedom' in a very personal, down-to-earth sense. He is not talking about abstractions, but about experience. He means that he is at last free to eat, and not to starve; he is free of the landlord and the money-lender.

★ ★ ★

"He is free to learn to read and write, he is free to develop skills that would otherwise have remained hidden; he is free to send his children to school, and when they are ill, there is a doctor to help make them well; he is free to look at the future with hope, not despair. For him, these all all new freedoms."

This is how communism "conquers" underdeveloped and poverty-stricken nations—by abrogating all political and individual freedom (which means little to a starving man) and replacing it with food, housing, medical care, schools, and technical training.

It strikes a bargain that the peasants and workers are only too glad to pay—for the "freedom" they have given up is one they have never been allowed to exercise.

Western capitalism has not understood this simple equation. Our political and individual freedoms are precious to us because they are the "surplus value" of a society that has never known famine and pestilence and tyranny as a normal way of life. But a hungry man, as Cato said long ago, has no ears; he votes with his stomach.

It is the human person who needs and desires our sort of freedom; but we do not become persons until our animal wants are gratified, until we no longer live from day to day and hand to mouth. Communism appeals to the biological man; we to the political man. At this stage of the world's development, it seems an unequal contest.

Perkins Needs An Adult Role

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

NEW YORK (NANA) — Tony Perkins can use an adult role—badly. Now in his mid 30s, the likeable Mr. Perkins has made a specialty of playing wide-eyed or psychotic young men who are doomed to adolescence for the rest of their cinematic lives. His latest, The Fool Killer, was previewed recently. This picture for Eli Landau is not going to change Tony's image. The lack of bookings for the picture had disappointed the lanky star who began at the top a decade ago in Friendly Persuasion and has not yet succeeded in persuading a producer that he is a fully grown man. A strong play on Broadway could fix this, but where do you find a good meaty drama? Don't call me. Call him.

★ ★ ★

Arlene Dahl and Matthew Kelly of San Francisco are reportedly on the verge of matrimony. Arlene, one of the great beauties, but not a great actress, has been flying hither and yon, mostly yon, to publicize her book, Always Ask A Man . . . Anthony Franciosa made his first trip to Paris earlier in the week, with his wife and children. Next stop, Melina Mercouri and Sandra Dee with whom he will co-star in Portugal and Rome in Welcome Mr. Beddoes.

★ ★ ★

James Mason is the most family-minded man I know. I mean with his parents, not his ex-wife Pamela. He was wanted at the Cannes film festival to appear with his recent movie, Piano Mechanique, but it was his birthday, and James preferred to spend the day with his parents in Switzerland. Had he but adored Pam with half the zeal he displays them.

Bill Marshall, now married to Ginger Rogers—as of going to press that is—will have a wedding in his family —20-year-old Mike Marshall, his son, with Michele Morgan, is about to take the big step with a singer who goes by the single name of Sophie.

Hungry Seal Eats Neighbors

Little Nipper Bites Big

Herbie is just a friendly, fun-loving seal.

And this presents problems . . . problems that officials of the Undersea Gardens hope to have solved by giving Herbie a new pen to play in.

* * *

The trouble with Herbie is that he likes two things above all others: people and fish.

He likes people for play and fish for lunch — and if things had kept on the way they were going, Herbie could have run the gardens right out of fish and right out of business.

* * *

When they found the seal as a baby last year, they put him in his own little pen. They fed him from hand, and petted and played with him.

Since Herbie doesn't have a mother, he got friendly with people.

But as he got friendlier, he also got bigger — and pretty soon divers began to notice suspicious chunks chewed out of the backs of inhabitants of the gardens.

Even the octopuses didn't escape.

"He just nips in, takes a bite, and nips out again," said manager William Starkey.

* * *

He had learned how to get out of his pen into the rest of the enclosure.

So they built him a fresh new pen, 48 feet long and 18 feet wide, and dumped him in.

* * *

"Everything was fine for about two hours," said Mr. Starkey, "and then all hell broke loose. He'd climbed back into the main enclosure."

So they built a vertical fence instead of a sloping one, and went home to bed.

"When we came in the next day," said Mr. Starkey, "Herbie was back in the main enclosure. I guess he just leaned on the wall until it gave a bit."

One of his victims this time was a big wolf eel. It had a telltake chunk taken out of its back and a mighty mean look in its eye when Mr. Starkey noticed it.

"Herbie was plain lucky," he said. "Those wolf eels are vicious when first brought in, and this one had just been caught two days before."

* * *

So they reinforced the wall and put their wayward pet back into his own pen, and that looked liked the end of it — until he started howling.

"He was lonely," said Mr. Starkey.

So now the divers play with him a couple of hours a day and plans are afoot to provide Herbie with female companionship.

And that should end it.

They hope.

June: School Estimate Boosted

Saanich Will Vote On $1,700,000 Bill

By GARY OAKES

Saanich school district hopes to present a $1,700,000 referendum to ratepayers sometime in June.

A meeting Friday night voted to add $500,000 to the school board's original estimate of $1,210,920.

About 50 representatives of municipal councils, ratepayer groups and Parent-Teacher Associations met in Mt. Newton Junior High School to discuss the district's second referendum in two years.

ACTIVITY ROOMS

They decided to add another $300,000 to provide needed activity rooms in four-room elementary schools, and $212,000 to purchase school site property.

The referendum covers the addition of 13 new classrooms, four replacements, nine activity rooms and numerous other shops and rooms in the district's 17 elementary and secondary schools. It also includes covered play areas in most of the elementary schools.

The board originally deleted activity rooms and the long-range property purposes from the referendum, but a motion to include the two items was approved 27 to 9.

PUBLIC MEETINGS

Mr. Campbell suggested the climate for learning has improved all over the province, and predicted if the ratepayers knew the facts they would all support the referendum.

The chairman said the board intends to hold public meetings to fully explain the referendum before it goes to the voters. In addition explanatory news letters will be sent to all homes in the district.

THREE YEARS

The referendum covers three years from the time it is approved, and it is designed to bring district schools up to the minimum standard allowed by the department.

Taxpayers will have to pay 25 per cent of the cost. The provincial government pays the remainder.

HIGHER COST

One official estimated it would boost district taxes by one mill.

Mr. Campbell said if the referendum is defeated it would have to be cut down and put to a vote again.

But he said any work cut out of the referendum would probably have to be done eventually anyway, and at a higher cost.

Three Rings Here Three Days

Spangles and bands and elephants move into Memorial Arena June 15 for a three-day stay.

Rudy Bros. Circus will be paying its fifth annual visit to Victoria, under Shrine sponsorship. The three-ring show will give six performances, at 4 and 8 p.m., June 15, 16 and 17.

As always, the show includes daring aerial artists, wild animals and tame ones, clowns, pretty girls and even a trained hippopotamus. Each performance lasts 2½ hours, with continuous action in all three rings.

Forest Products To Meet City On Ash Problem

B.C. Forest Products Ltd. was named Friday as the only real problem left in controlling the smoke and fly-ash nuisance, within city limits, and Victoria made a move to get together with senior officials of the firm and see if something can be done.

Company plant manager Herbert Barnes, also a member of the city council's air pollution advisory board, said he would get in touch with company headquarters "brass" and try and set up a meeting in Victoria, at which the city's position will be explained and an effort made to get the firm to establish controls.

A report from city engineer James Garnett said the cinder fallout from discharge from three steam boilers is very high.

The plywood division of the plant, Mr. Garnett said in a report, was issuing fumes from the drier exhaust vents.

Other principal offenders, the report said, are Bay Street Armory, Douglas Building and Capital Iron. These are secondary, however.

Tons Each Day

Smoke inspector Sam Mottishaw said that B.C. Forest Products stacks are discharging 3½ tons of cinders and fly-ash into the atmosphere every 24 hours. Under the terms of the city bylaw, a discharge of two tons is allowed.

"It seems to be simple enough. If the bylaw is broken and we propose to ignore it, the law should be redrafted. Otherwise we should disband this committee," the chairman, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, told members.

Mr. Barnes said that the tests on which Mr. Mottishaw's conclusions were based were taken when the mill was cutting hemlock. In the case of fir, the cinder-ash content of smoke would be much lower.

"This is hardly relevant. If a man is speeding he is breaking the law. Police don't take the average of the speeds he drives. If the law is broken, that's it," said Mr. Garnett.

Car Incinerator

Capital Iron came under fire for burning up old car carcasses in order to free them from unwanted materials before they are pressed and shipped as scrap.

"This is simply a matter of money," said assistant city engineer William Jorgensen.

"These people get more for clean scrap than for the other. A vehicle can be pressed and shipped without burning, but it is not worth as much."

In this instance the inspector will be told to enforce the bylaw which prohibits such burning.

Mr. Jorgensen also said that in the case of B.C. Forest Products, one of the four boilers in the mill is equipped with a proper control and gives the city no trouble at all. If the others were so equipped, it was almost certain that they would also cease to be a nuisance.

Great strides were made with the closing-down of cone burners at Smith Cedar Products and the Point Ellice division of B.C. Forest Products, Ald. Edgelow said. He was sure that persistent co-operative effort would see the whole problem eliminated.

'What's Point of Protest?'

Sewage: A Weekend Secret

By IAN SMITH

A decision has been made on the Saanich application to dump treated sewage into waters draining into Portage Inlet—but nobody is going to find out what the decision was, at least until Monday.

An official of the pollution control board confirmed that a decision was to be made Friday, but he refused to disclose it.

"Our policy is not to make public statements," he said. "We inform only the applicant —in this case Saanich municipality."

He indicated that Saanich officials might not be informed of the decision until early Monday.

The Saanich application to dump 35,000 gallons a day of treated sewage into Colquitz Creek has been on ice since Portage Inlet residents opposed it last year.

An application to dump 90,000 gallons of treated sewage a day into Colquitz Creek—and thence into the Gorge—has since been made by the provincial government. The board is expected to act on this application next month.

Residents have until June 16 to protest the new application.

"But what's the point?" asked one. "We opposed the Saanich application, and now they aren't even having the decency to let us know what the decision was.

"All they did was wait until the protest had died down a bit before making their decision."

Thirty Days to Appeal

Should the decision be in favor of the application, residents will have 30 days to launch an appeal.

The applications have been attacked on two grounds.

- Residents do not like the idea of swimming in waters containing sewage, whether it is treated or not.
- They feel that treated or untreated sewage facilitates the growth of large amounts of algae which now is clogging the inlet.

Public Works Minister Chant, who hopes to have a retarded children's hospital built on Wilkinson Road, said:

"There are a lot of things in life we don't like, but some things must just be put up with. We are doing the best we can with what is provided."

Some residents feit differently:

"Either the Gorge is to be considered as a recreational area or as a sewer ditch, and it can't be both satisfactorily," said F. T. Worth, 2875 Ashley.

Police Clear Throats

Thugs Will Lose Any Tie Match

If a thug grabs a Victoria policeman's necktie and tries to choke him with it, he will find that the four-in-hand comes away in his hand.

Clip-on ties may not be sartorially sound, but they're a lot safer, in the opinion of Chief J. F. Gregory, who recommended their purchase to members of the police commission Friday.

In addition, said the chief, they make for standardization. All policemen will have ties of the same length, and the knots will all be the same size.

Clothing purchases authorized by the commission included shirts, pea jackets, gloves and gauntlets for motorcycle officers.

Esquimalt Delays

View Royal Waits Amalgamation Move

Leaders of the View Royal Ratepayers and Community Association are still waiting for word from Esquimalt for a date to begin discussion on amalgamation.

A standing-room-only meeting last week authorized the directors of the association to meet Esquimalt for discussion and report back.

An association spokesman said Friday night that a letter had been sent to Esquimalt about setting up a meeting but as yet no answer had been received.

Esquimalt council held a closed committee meeting Tuesday to discuss the View Royal developments, but the results of the meeting were not made public.

After the meeting, Reeve A. C. Wurtele said council had authorized the clerk to send a letter to the View Royal association, but he didn't disclose its contents.

Reeve Wurtele said he thought it only fair that View Royal ratepayers learn the contents of the letter first hand.

Among the points likely to be discussed at any meeting would be a lower mill rate for View Royal.

The View Royal meeting was told that at present there is no need for some of the services provided in Esquimalt, so there would be no point in paying for them.

A View Royal spokesman said a general meeting would be called on June 14 to report on any discussions with Esquimalt and to form a centennial committee.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mom goes to the doctor for help in her battle against a cold. The doctor gives her a prescription. It helps to make her well in a week.

Just about then, Dad comes down with the same type of cold. Mom still has some of her medicine left. She suggests he take it, thereby saving the cost of a trip to the doctor for another prescription.

This is dangerous business. In thousands of households nationwide, families unwittingly invite disaster by sharing prescription drugs. In the name of saving money, they don't discard old drugs.

Other rules concerning use of prescription drugs:

—Be sure you know how often, and when to take the medicine; the exact size of the dose; any special instructions of the physician.

—Drugs often deteriorate and become either dangerous or ineffective. Date all medications. When in doubt about a medicine being too old, ask your pharmacist or doctor.

—Any medicine may become poisonous if misused. Be sure to read and understand all directions. Measure doses carefully. Never take anything internally in the dark or from an unlabelled bottle or container.

When destroying old medicines it is best to flush them down the toilet. Rinse bottles and crush boxes before disposal to prevent children and pets from getting them.

Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital will hold a June Flower Tea in the Nurses' Residence from 2 to 4:30 p.m., June 2. Mrs. C. Baker, president, and Mrs. R. Pye is in charge of the home baking table. Discussing arrangements are, from left to right, Mrs. J. W. Gillis, auxiliary member; Miss Hunt, Mrs. P. W. Semenchuk, Miss Woolsey and Mrs. A. Cownden, treasurer.—(Kinsman)

"Welcome to the TWILIGHT ZONE!"

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've known Warren a long time but he never asked me out until two months ago. On our first date he suggested that I meet him inside the movie because he might be late. He said, "I hope you won't mind buying your own ticket."

A week later Warren invited me to a concert and asked me to pick up a pair of tickets because my office is next door to the ticket agency. He said, "I'll reimburse you, of course." Somehow it slipped his mind.

He asked me to select a birthday gift for his mother. I spent $15. He keeps saying, "I must pay you for Mother's gift"—but I've yet to see the money. Twice I have been stuck for taxis because he didn't have anything smaller than a $20 bill. Last night he asked me to bring an extra pack of cigarettes because he hadn' had time to buy any.

I've never known a fellow who behaved this way, but when I am with Warren the skies are blue and I can hear the birds sing. Any advice for me?—DEFICIT DONNA.

Dear Donna: Have you listened to those birds carefully? I think they are saying "Cheap-cheap."

Put an end to the bumming routine. If Warren disappears you haven't lost much.

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: Why do people who write a daily column insist on putting in a picture of themselves—and a picture that was made 20 years ago at that? No columnist whose mug shot I've seen in the paper could be recognized from his picture.

The space your picture uses up could accommodate about 85 words. I would rather read what you say than look at your face. I suggest you drop the picture, Miss Landers. Thanks a lot—PHOTOFINISH.

Dear Photofinish: The mug shots which appear with columns are printed not because the writer thinks he is beautiful, but because a picture helps the reader find the column immediately.

When my column first began no picture was used. After several readers accused me of being a cigar-chomping male I asked my editors if they would run my picture.

Now, aren't you sorry you said all those mean things?

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: If you can tell me how to free myself of my step-children without losing my husband you are a miracle worker.

We have been married 18 months. My husband's sons have borrowed money which I'm sure will never be repaid. They come over and drive his car out of the driveway without asking. They borrow his fishing equipment, walk off with his golf clubs, then complain because the golf balls are old.

My husband's daughter carried off my steam iron last week. When I asked her to return it she said, "I thought it was my mother's." I told her the iron was mine and she replied, "I dropped it and it's not worth fixing."

Saturday she brought her three children over and said they'd be back for them Sunday afternoon. (They had made plans to go to the mountains and the sitter fell through.)

My husband says I have to get along with them because they are his kids. How can I—and still keep my sanity?—8-BALL.

Dear 8: You can't do anything about a father who is a shnook, but you don't have to be one, too.

Tell your stepdaughter to keep her pea-picking hands off your appliances. Refuse to allow her to dump her children on you. Let your husband know you will not allow his children to use you so shamelessly.

Hospitality with a Capital 'H'

By TRUDY KEMP

I've often heard about the hospitality of the Gulf Islanders . . . over the Victoria Day weekend three friends from Vancouver, my husband Jack and I were on the receiving end of this island hospitality with a capital "H".

It all started when the five of us, plus our poodle, Coppelia, set off Saturday afternoon in our recently-acquired little cabin cruiser, the Galatea on what we thought was going to be a carefree weekend of cruising and fishing.

Our first stop was at Dick and Doreen Gaines' place on Saturna Island where we anchored in their east bay for the night. Marge Menzies and I stayed up at the house and the men slept on the boat. Next morning we learned they had experienced a rather sleepless night as the wind had whipped up shortly after midnight causing a few anxious hours.

Later in the afternoon the weather still looked unsettled so we decided to head for home and this time by way of the islands. We had just gone through Boat Pass, setting course for Pender, when the big outboard motor stopped and no amount of coaxing would budge it.

We were not too worried because we had a "trusty" little auxiliary motor which would at least keep us underway until we reached a harbor . . . so we thought. It wouldn't start!

We had one thing in our favor, we were not out in the open water. All we had to worry about was keeping Galatea off the rocks along the shoreline. This we were able to do with the boat hook and oars from the skiff. After about a half an hour of this (it seemed like hours) we rounded a point at Samuel Island and saw to our joy a sheltered cove complete with a dock.

We managed to get through the narrow passage between the reefs and shore with Jack in the skiff towing the cruiser until one of the oarlocks pulled loose. Then we had to paddle the rest of the way. What a relief when we finally tied up to the dock.

Leaving the men to tinker with the auxiliary motor, Marge and I left the dock and cut across the fields on Samuel Island to find out if anyone was around and explain our situation.

* * *

As we approached the neat bungalow two dogs came bounding out at us kicking up quite a fuss. However, we noticed they were wagging their tails in greeting and appeared friendly. At the same time a man and woman came outside and hailed us.

"It's alright. You're welcome, you're welcome!"

What a wonderful greeting!

And that is how we met the Yates of Samuel Island.

"Just call us Jim and Hilda," were their first words of introduction.

Hilda took Marge and me in for a welcome cup of coffee and Jim went down to the boat to see if he could help out.

We had planned on hauling out our camping equipment and cook supper on the beach . . . it was close to 8 o'clock by then . . . but Hilda insisted that we use her kitchen and make ourselves at home.

* * *

As for sleeping on the boat that night . . . the Yates would have none of that. They put Marge and me up in the spare bedroom and set up the day beds in the living room for the men.

Without any reservations Jim and Hilda, who look after this delightful little island for a Seattle family, took five weary strangers into their home and made them feel completely at ease.

As for our poodle, she was fussed over by our host and hostess and surprisingly was accepted by the dogs, "Pup" and Lucky, and even three of the four cats. In fact Coppelia became quite friendly with Hilda's pet nine-week-old lamb, Bonnie, who was a little character in itself.

The black-faced pet was bottle-fed and she let anyone and everybody know in no uncertain terms when it was time for that bottle. She also followed us all over the place next day, even back and forth to the boat — ba-aa-aaing her head off if we didn't wait up for her.

After a needed good night's sleep Jack was ready to tackle the problem of getting our boat underway again. While the men were down at the dock working on the small motor, a trimaran named the Sea Mew sailed into the bay and dropped anchor. On board were Harry and Phil Dickens from Fulford Harbour who had come to visit the Yates.

Once again we were in luck. It turned out Harry had a similar small motor to ours and offered to lend a hand. After a couple of hours of taking the motor apart and doing everything they could think of with no success it looked as though we were in a spot.

Harry Dickens came to the rescue and offered to lend Jack — a perfect stranger—his own motor so we could take Galatea across to Hope Bay where a mechanic could look at the big motor.

Everything settled, we went up to the house for lunch. Before we were finished Harry came up and told Jack that as it would be difficult for him to steer the boat all the way he would tow us across . . . and that is just what the Dickens did.

We arrived in Hope Bay around 4 p.m., and Lewis Audin, following a phone call from Jim at Samuel Island, was there to meet us. He had the big motor going within a few minutes, assuring us we would have no trouble getting home.

We docked in our boathouse at Sidney a couple of hours later without further mishap.

Our weekend was over! Definitely not the one we planned but had it been we wouldn't have met the Yates or the Dickens . . . those hospitable people of the islands.

Of Mice and Men Or, If at First...

LONDON (UPI) — A little field mouse helped a telephone workers to get a 30-foot cable through a three-inch gap beneath a railway crossing Friday.

For four days the workers tried steel tubes, wire and thin timber — all failed . . . until someone said: "Let's try a mouse."

★ ★ ★

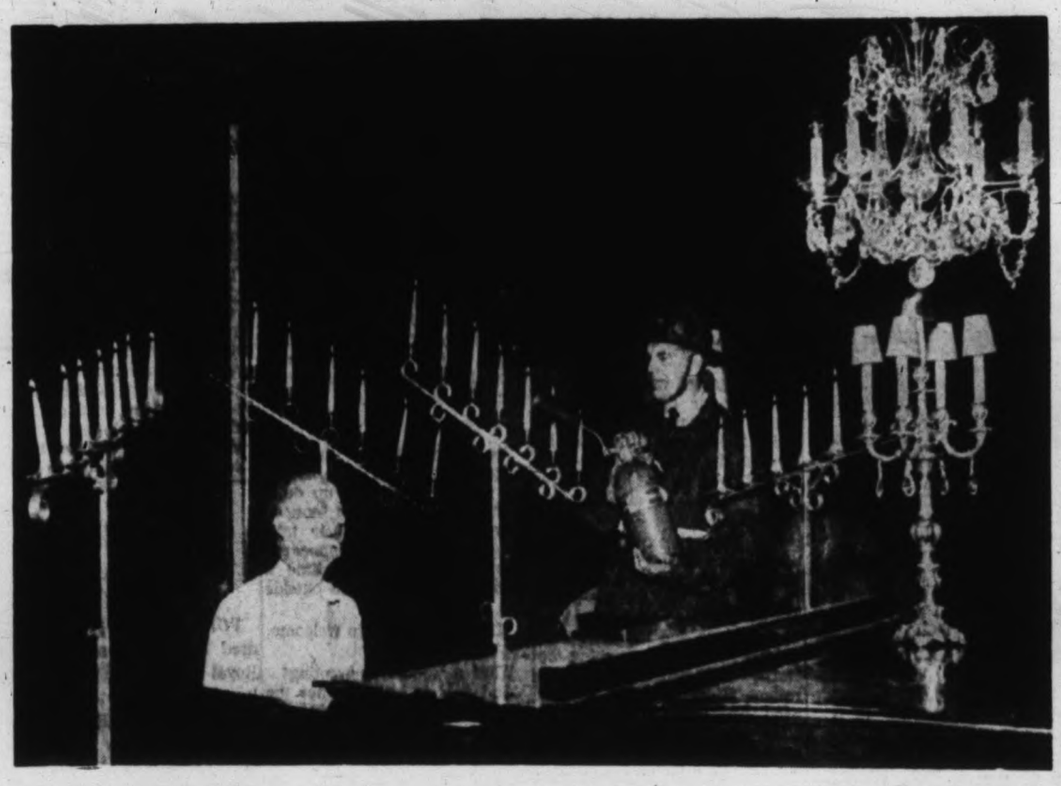

So they caught three field mice, tied a thin thread to the tail of one of them and slipped it into the gap.

After one false start they were successful. The mouse scampered into the gap and emerged on the other side of the crossing.

★ ★ ★

All that was left for the men to do was to attach the thread to a stronger line, tie this to the cable and pull it through. It took 90 minutes.

The mice were given some cheese and milk, and set free.

Former mayor Percy Scurrah, 19 King George Terrace, was fined $35 in city magistrate's court Friday after he was found guilty of careless driving.

John W. Robinson, 1216 Fort, was remanded until Monday for sentence after he pleaded guilty to breaking and entering.

Court was told he and two other youths jimmied a window at 2126-A Spring Road, and Robinson and one of the other youths entered the premises and stole two bottles of liquor, $1 in coins, four pairs of trousers, two sport jackets and a transistor radio.

★ ★ ★

A youth who said he stole four hubcaps for his mother's car was remanded until June 4 for sentence.

Michael McGovern, 18, of 2333 Blanshard, was charged with theft under $50. Prosecution evidence was that he had taken the hubcaps from a Volkswagen parked at the rear of 1240 Bay. They were worth $15.

Oak Bay High Band Will Make U.S. Tour

The concert band of Oak Bay Senior High School won an audience Friday night, but it was director David Dunnet who stole the show with a special announcement.

Shortly before intermission Mr. Dunnet sprang a surprise not only on the audience but also on the the young bandsmen.

The Oak Bay senior band next April will make a tour of Washington, Oregon and California, playing public and school concerts and spreading the word about Canada's coming centenary, he said.

PRIVATE HOMES

The band will see Seattle, Astoria, Portland, Sacramento, San Francisco, Santa Barbara and Los Angeles. In most places its members will stay in private homes.

There will be sightseeing and trips of educational value. The musical programs will emphasize Canadian music. Mr. Dunnet hopes that some of this may be specially-commissioned new works.

Friday night's program, the annual spring concert in Oak Bay Junior High auditorium, showed how well qualified the band is to make such a tour.

Variety was the keynote.

It was certainly not all marching music. Especially pleasing were Scottish folk songs, such Latin American music as Jamaican Rhumba, and Dixieland tunes.

NOTABLE SOLOS

Notable solos were given by trumpeters Larry Hall and Larry Corbett.

Clinics Advocated For Divorce And Desertions

Marriage counselling clinics should be established by each B.C. municipality to head off family desertion or divorce, it was suggested here Friday.

The suggestion was contained in a brief presented to the provincial government by four representatives of a group calling itself the Pearl Bentley Society for Deserted Children.

MEET OFFICIALS

They met Deputy Attorney-General Gilbert Kennedy, Deputy Welfare Minister Raymond Rickinson and a government solicitor.

The seven-page brief listed several recommendations concerning deserted wives, husbands and children, social welfare, family court and marriage counselling.

Dr. Kennedy said the government has been studying the general problems but each aspect of the brief will be looked into.

ACTION IF NEEDED

The government will take action "if we find it necessary," the deputy minister added.

The brief suggested a marriage counselling clinic should offer advice on legal, medical, psychological and social needs.

It "could also undertake and provide services in the area of child care and teen-age guidance and in research in respect to causes of desertion."

LAWYERS CITED

And the brief suggested lawyers "refuse services to any wife or husband in respect to divorce or separation, pending the clinic's recommendation . . ."

The brief also recommended:

- Deserted mothers and children not be classified as social welfare recipients in order to "remove some of the stigma and create greater self-respect on the part of the recipients;"
- Children of a deserted spouse receive similar considerations and benefits as foster children;
- Support payments by the deserting spouse be made directly to the court;
- Medical care be continued for deserted mothers who gain employment;
- Deserting mothers be subject to the same punishment as deserting fathers;
- Facilities be provided to enable deserted spouses to obtain social, legal and civil information;
- The government make it mandatory that support payments take priority over all debts;
- Legal families be considered before common-law families;
- Temporary custody of children be decided by the family court judge and permanent custody be decided by a tribunal.

Indian Mine Blast Leaves 375 Missing

CALCUTTA, India (UPI) — An underground explosion early Friday rocked a 2½-square-mile area of the big Bhori coal mine in eastern India. About 375 miners were feared killed or trapped by the blast.

The explosion occurred as 400 miners were changing shifts. Officials said there were some 200 miners in each shift. The cause was not immediately known.

WORST IN DECADE

Reports from the disaster area in the Hazaribagh district north-east of Calcutta described it as the worst mine explosion in India in the past 10 years.

The mine engine room was reduced to rubble by the explosion. Windows were shattered for miles around and the entire area was enveloped in smoke and dust.

Members of the mine's supervisory staff were reported to be among those killed.

Hazaribagh is a rich coal and mica-mining area in Bihar state of eastern India near the Pakistan border.

Our brewmaster kilns a special hardy malt, because this is what his celebrated 1882 lager recipe demands. Every mellow drop of Labatt's has a lion's share of good beer flavour. You'll like it.

Today's beers are light beers. Labatt's is light beer with muscles.

CEDAR

"A new cedar specialty for Beauty Long Life Economy

• • •

What is "FOREST" Siding?

A new and attractive type of siding that comes from specially "selected" cedar logs sawn to bring out all the distinctive character of knots, burls and grain.

How to finish "FOREST"

"Forest has a distinctive horizontal shadow line that will enhance the beauty of your home.

If you wish to preserve the natural rustic effect of "Forest" apply a coat of oil filler first, then varnish or shellac. "Forest" siding also takes paint beautifully if you wish a colored finish.

YOU can easily apply "FOREST" cedar siding

Many home owners have applied this modern, beautiful "Forest" siding themselves without the slightest difficulty.

TV TALK

By BRUCE LOWTHER

TV NOTES: That's quite an article in TV Guide about the BBC's satirical successor to TW3, Not So Much a Program, More a Way of Life. There's only one thing wrong with it—the BBC is expected to renew the show next fall, despite its "bad taste" . . . NBC has a Tarzan series definitely set for the 1966-67 season . . . Cantankerous neighbor Leon Ames is being dropped from Mr. Ed.

NBC has finally found a place for newsman Sander Vanocur, who quit once in a big money dispute. He'll be the Washington correspondent for Today . . . the same network has asked TV producers to step up use of all minorities, not just Negroes, in all shows and says the producers were "very sympathetic."

"The high point of tonight's viewing was Johnny Carson and Ed McMahon giggling over the prune juice commercial."

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Even though you have a seemingly watertight sequence of honors, it doesn't always pay to toss out the honor nearest your thumb when you tackle a suit. And even though you have 28 points and a double-stop in every suit, three no trump can still be tough to make. Can you equal the deft cardplay that won South his contract?

Vul: Both

SOUTH
♠ A K 10
♥ Q 10 7 4
♦ J 5 4
♣ K 5 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	3 N.T.	All Pass

Opening lead: Spade five

Although it made little difference on this ocassion, North's two club bid over partner's one heart response is worth noting. North had considered raising to three hearts instead, but on hands of this pattern it is a very sound principle to bid a new suit rather than give partner a jump-raise with only three-card support. However, if North's hand were a couple of points weaker, thus qualifying only for a raise to two hearts, then the heart raise would be better than bidding two clubs.

Against three no trump, West opened the spade five and East's jack went to declarer's king. Given sufficient time, South could develop the necessary tricks in the red suits, but care must be taken to neutralize the threat of the spade suit. A simple stratagem provided the answer. Declarer crossed to the club ace and led a small diamond, playing the jack when East followed low. When the jack held, declarer shifted at once to hearts, and could not be denied nine tricks.

Note that it makes a vital difference which hand declarer led the diamond from. If he starts by leading up to dummy, East wins and drives out declarer's last spade stopper, and now the 4-1 diamond break spells defeat. Similarly, if South tackles hearts before diamonds, the inevitable spade return busts the contract wide open.

Playing as he did, declarer is safe against most distributions. If West turns up with the diamond ace, he cannot lead to advantage; while on the actual layout it does East no good to go in with the diamond ace, since declarer then has enough tricks without a heart. Only if East has all five missing diamonds is the contract in jeopardy.

PROFESSIONAL MANAGEMENT

A full-time caretaker and a full-time resident manager provide the best possible professional management at all times. Although we at Charter House wish the tenants to enjoy their suite and the recreational areas provided as they would their own home, we also insist that the rights of all tenants be protected at all times. Our professional management provides such a combination by inviting gracious and enjoyable living but at the same time restricting those activities which will disturb the peace and quiet of other tenants. This professional management combination also allows us to provide the convenience of allowing rentals to be paid at the building to the resident manager.

Charter House is situated within five minutes from the major downtown shopping area of the city of Victoria. It is within an easy stroll of the beautiful Legislative Buildings, Beacon Hill Park and the inner harbor.

QUIET PARKSIDE LOCATION

At the Gallery
A Feast of Surprises

By INA D. D. UHTHOFF

The 15th annual Vancouver Island Jury Show got off to a good start with what must have been a record crowd.

It will be one to remember. There is "op" and "pop" art, large art and small art, good art and some remarkably bad art in it. I can remember nothing to equal this in the past for surprises.

* * *

Once upon a time there existed a standard, an imaginary measuring stick of quality could be applied. Did the artist have sufficient experience of drawing and painting, did he have anything to say in paint, could he use color with knowledge and control?

Today, none of that matters. Self-expression comes first.

Some of the newcomers to our annual jamboree of painting have produced the most violent shocks.

* * *

After Tic Toc by John Dobereiner, anything is an anti-climax. Even Donald Harvey's first prize painting, Cryla, fails to hold our attention.

No doubt this will be stimulating to the embryo painters at the University of Victoria, where Mr. Dobereiner has been appointed assistant to Mr. Harvey of the art department.

* * *

But in Maxwell Bates' Kindergarten, there is power combined with control and sophisticated handling of color pattern that has won for him the second prize.

This year there are seven honorable mentions, headed by Pat Martin Bates' single print etching, Offrande a une Ombre, an outstanding achievement in the field of graphic art.

* * *

Michael Morris' etching and aquatint, Sunflower, marks a new direction in this young artist's work. Edith Jones concentrates on the serigraph for which she is renowned. Her The Uninhabited possesses a beautiful movement in yellows.

To return to the paintings, the development of the work of Nita Forest is arresting in her A Woman, A Child, and in the graphics her small ink drawing, Torso, should not be overlooked.

* * *

There is a great deal in this show that requires careful attention. There are many new exhibitors this year, some experienced and highly trained, some not.

Judging by the shining look on some people's faces on Tuesday evening, this must have been a night to remember when they could point out a production of their own hanging on the walls of the Art Gallery.

What was so pleasing about this opening night of the show was the large proportion of young people present, and their excited participation.

There is still a good deal to be said about this show, which I hope to follow up with shortly.

The hardy men of Cookham say this of Gold Keg Beer:

Gold Keg Beer met dazzling success at the old Bel & Dragon.

Send more.

Canada's own Gold Keg Beer is scoring rousing victories across the pond.

They want more.

In Operation Gold Keg we're testing our celebrated beer in the pubs and taverns of England, where some of the world's best beer-drinking men are to be found.

And we're delighted to report that Englishmen class Gold Keg with the best of British beers.

Many of them hold that it's every inch as good as Younger's, Bass, Whitbread's and Worthington's.

They like Gold Keg's bouquet. They like its amber colour. They like its mellow taste.

Ah, but we expected as much.

Because we know a thing or two about beer on this side of the pond, too.

Two Boosts For Appeal

The United Appeal received a double helping hand from city council Friday.

Aldermen approved a recommendation that coins tossed into Centennial Fountain be forwarded as a contribution to the appeal.

And they decided to name Douglas Street between Fort and Herald United Way during October, to assist the Appeal drive Sept. 27 to Nov. 1.

Festival Loss

Council Pays Happily

The Spring Flower Festival cost the city $2,170, but members of city council feel it was money well spent.

They passed a resolution Friday complimenting festival organizers and assuring them that, if they want to start on plans earlier this year, they will have the fullest support of the city.

Council guaranteed possible losses of up to $5,000 this year.

HUGE SUCCESS

Pat Frumento, chairman of the festival committee of the Chamber of Commerce, said the Usher show in McPherson Playhouse was a huge success, along with the fashion show and the art exhibit.

"This is becoming an important event, and we are delighted with its progress," said Mayor Wilson.

Council also:

- Reversed a committee decision against a grant to help the Victoria Boys' Band make an annual trip to Portland for the Rose Festival in June. An appeal by band secretary Mrs. K. F. Mawdsley caused council to relent and give $150.
- Considered scrolls, signed by all council members, as possible honors for people who make gifts to the city. One case was that of Mrs. Harold Husband, who gave $1,335 for the installation of three mature plane trees on the east side of Centennial Square.
- Set $915 a month as the salary of Jack Morgan, new superintendent of community sport centres, from June 1.
- Decided to study further a Saanich proposal to take over Gorge Park on a 20-year renewable lease at a nominal rental, and give the area a facelift.
- Agreed the Senior Citizen's Centre in Centennial Square will open officially in the week beginning July 5.

Esquimalt Cutoff Protested

The loss of Esquimalt from what was the Saanich-Esquimalt federal riding will be protested by city council.

Mayor Wilson said following a closed council session Friday the redistribution is harmful to Victoria for several reasons.

One was that Victoria-Esquimalt had been one economic unit for years. An example was appeals to Ottawa on behalf of Esquimalt shipyards, always made on a constituency basis.

A city brief will be presented to the federal redistribution commission when it sits here in September.

Dam Workers Crowd Hospital

TRAIL (CP)—British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority will be asked this weekend to assist financially a hospital threatened with overcrowding by the influx of dam construction personnel.

Bill McNaughton, chairman of Trail-Tadanac hospital, said the hospital must be expanded to accommodate the area's population, rapidly increasing because of the Columbia River hydro development.

Colwood Father Charged in Murder

A young Colwood father, charged Friday with the capital murder of 14-year-old Susan Freschi May 11, was to be transferred today to Oakalla Prison.

Robinson

David Leonard Robinson, of 324 Old Island Highway, a 24-year-old self-employed janitor and father of a week-old baby, was remanded to June 5.

He is charged with the bludgeon slaying of the pretty American teen-ager in a secluded wood about a quarter-mile from her aunt's home at 2637 Chilco Road.

VISITING AUNT

The La Canada, Calif., schoolgirl had been staying with her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, and her cousin Felicity since last fall.

Susan's nude and battered body was found by searchers May 12, the day after she disappeared on the two-mile walk from the Trans-Canada Highway bus stop to her aunt's home.

TIED WITH ROPE

Her hands had been tied behind her back with a 15-foot length of ⅜-inch manila rope which has since undergone laboratory tests. Police declined to discuss the findings of the rope analysis.

RCMP Inspector G. M. McKay said Robinson was first arrested last week on a charge of breaking and entering. Investigation of the lesser charge led to the decision to lay the capital murder charge Thursday night, he said.

NOT CUSTOMARY

He declined to give details of the breaking and entering charge because it would ". . . involve people who had nothing to do with the murder investigation."

Robinson will probably spend his week's remand at Oakalla. Police said it is not their custom to keep prisoners on week-long remands in city jail cells.

REMAND AGREED

He is scheduled to appear before Magistrate William Ostler in central magistrate's court at Saanich June 5, when a date is to be set for a preliminary hearing.

Friday's appearance was before Magistrate Harold Alder in provincial magistrate's court at the Law Courts Building.

Special prosecutor W. R. McIntyre and defence counsel Alan Bigelow, both of Victoria, agreed to a remand of the breaking and entering charge to the same date.

WEEK EARLIER

It was Robinson's second remand on the breaking and entering charge. He had originally appeared a week earlier in the same court.

Normal procedure in capital cases is for a preliminary hearing to be held in magistrate's court first. If the magistrate is satisfied the Crown has produced enough evidence to warrant committal, a Supreme Court trial is scheduled, usually before a judge and jury.

LEFT SCHOOL

Investigators painstakingly pieced together the girl's movements up to her disappearance and conducted hundreds of interviews with neighbors in the sparsely populated area, patrons of the Six-Mile House beer parlor and restaurant, and even casual passersby.

They believe Susan had left St. Ann's Academy after school to practice riding at the Victoria Riding Academy. She was preparing for a riding competition.

TELEPHONED HOME

She telephoned her aunt later to say she would be a little late because she intended to stay and help with a stable cleanup.

Mrs. Earnshaw, who usually picked up the girl in the family car at the bus stop, told Susan she planned to go to a movie that

Trembling Fingers, Pale Face

David Robinson paid no attention to the crowd of reporters that half-filled the small public gallery in court Friday as a charge of capital murder was read to him.

The youthful, blond prisoner looked smaller than his slightly stooped five-foot-three as he entered the courtroom.

* * *

He was flanked by two burly RCMP plainclothesmen while a third policeman watched from a half-step behind.

While he waited for Magistrate Harold Alder to appear, Robinson touched his pale face repeatedly with trembling fingers.

* * *

After his appearance, he was whisked back to his cell as quickly as he had arrived from inside the RCMP headquarters office that adjoins the courtroom.

'Selfish East' Lashed

Western Canada might go it alone economically if the federal government doesn't change its financial policies, national Social Credit leader Robert Thompson warned here Friday.

Mr. Thompson charged Finance Minister Walter Gordon's policies discriminate against the west and accused the federal government of failing to recognize a boom going on in B.C. and the Prairie provinces.

SELFISH INTERESTS

The Red Deer MP said Mr. Gordon's financial policies reflect "selfish eastern interests that think they can use the West as their milk cow."

As an example of discrimination, Mr. Thompson pointed to Mr. Gordon's intention of not allowing the provinces to invest in banks.

The Social Credit leader agreed with Premier Bennett's statement that there is a widen-

Prediction is for winds up to 20 miles an hour, diminishing in afternoon. — (B. C. Government)

Church Committees Agree

Anglican, United Closer to Merger

TORONTO (CP) — A group of clergymen representing the United Church and the Anglican Church have agreed on the basic principles of union between Canada's two largest Protestant denominations, it was learned Friday night.

* * *

A reliable source in the Anglican Church said details of the principles will be set out Tuesday at a press conference.

He stressed that the agreement is, so far, only between committees representing the two churches and any union must still be approved by the synod or general council of both churches.

Union between the churches would create a body with more than 6,000,000 members or adherents. In the 1961 census 3,664,000 Canadians listed their religion as United Church and 2,409,000 as Anglican.

* * *

The two churches have been holding discussions toward a possible union for more than 20 years. The source said the two "committees of ten," which produced the document to be released Tuesday, have agreed on the principles of faith and order.

* * *

This is regarded as the basic and most vital step to union, and implies a theological agreement on the nature of the way it should be governed.

Agreement between the committees was reached May 14 at a closed meeting. A copy of the document they consented to will be mailed to clergy from both churches Tuesday, the source said.

The Big Leap

Space rendezvous, solo jet 'swim' surprises in U.S. June shot

GEMINI GOAL: PASS RUSSIA

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—U.S. Astronaut Edward White will leap from his orbiting capsule early in June to take a self-propelled flight through space, officials disclosed Friday. He will approach — and perhaps touch — another satellite and snap a series of pictures.

In a stunning announcement, the Federal Space Agency said White and Gemini-4 pilot James McDivitt would try to rendezvous their craft with the burned out Titan-2 second-stage rocket that earlier put them in orbit.

White will climb outside the cabin and leap off into space by himself as Gemini-4 crosses over Hawaii on the second orbit.

He will then use a hand-held manoeuvring unit with double-barrelled rockets to try to nuzzle up to the gleaming rocket stage which, like White, will be whizzing through space at about 17,000 miles an hour.

The Federal Space Agency announced that a faulty battery had been replaced in the 7,200-pound spaceship and tests were being held to see if the ship was ready for flight.

The agency said June 3 remained the target date for launch, but a re-evaluation of the schedule is expected today after a crucial simulated flight test. Sources said a delay was likely.

White

They're Delighted

Meanwhile, McDivitt and White said they were delighted with the go-ahead for the unprecedented spacecraft and human manoeuvring in space.

The experiment was the latest to be added to the plans for Gemini 4—a planned four-day voyage that, if all goes well, will match and surpass the best the Soviet Union has yet managed in manned flight.

Still later in the flight, officials said, rookie astronauts McDivitt and White will try again to maneuver up to, or rendezvous with—but not actually touch—the Titan 2 Rocket.

The fabulous adventure depends upon how gently McDivitt can manoeuvre his capsule away from the booster rocket.

If it is soft enough, and doesn't cause the rocket to tumble and fly off in another direction, Gemini-4 and Titan-2 will fly "in formation" around the earth, never more than about 100 feet apart.

McDivitt will use his control jets—the ones successfully tested by astronauts Virgil Grissom and John Young last March 23—to close the gap to about 25 feet.

Then White will go out of the capsule into space, wearing a $26,000 suit of space clothes and 22 layers of material to protect him from the hostile environment.

Nylon Lifeline

White will be securely attached to the Gemini-4 capsule by a 25-foot nylon lifeline. But it will permit him freedom to move almost at will in that radius.

The hand-held propulsion unit, shaped something like a child's bicycle handlebars, employs oxygen jets with one pound of thrust each to push him from place to place. He can operate the gadget by simply squeezing.

The camera will be attached to the "handlebar" portion of the unit, officials said.

A spokesman said the manoeuvre probably would put White within touching distance of the Titan-2. But whether he will actually reach out and make such an attempt would depend on several factors, including whether the Titan-2 was tumbling.

After finishing his picture-taking mission, White will "reel" himself back in and re-enter the capsule. Then McDivitt will fire the manoeuvring jets again to put Gemini-4 about 16 miles behind the booster.

On the fifth orbit, as the capsule passes over the Atlantic between South America and Africa six hours and 40 minutes after lift-off, the astronauts will try again to drive their ship toward the rocket stage.

Federal Space Agency manned spaceflight chief George Mueller said that "if successful, we will have done some things that the Russians have not tried . . . manoeuvring to rendezvous and manoeuvring an astronaut in space with a manoeuvring unit."

Lima Students Burn U.S. Flag

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — An American flag was burned Friday during a demonstration by 200 students against the landing of troops by the United States in the Dominican Republic.

Atlantic Hop By Copter Piece of Cake

PRESTWICK, Scotland (AP) —Four Canadians stepped from a helicopter at Prestwick Airport Friday night after the first unescorted helicopter crossing of the Atlantic.

Their skipper, Thomas Scheer, 42, of Langley, B.C., called the 4,000-mile flight "a piece of cake."

"Just routine flight," he said. "We owe it all to Lindbergh and the months we spent in planning."

It took 15 days.

Cheap B.C. Power Lure for Japanese Smelters

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

TOKYO — Premier Bennett has mapped the course his government intends to pursue in establishing secondary industry in B.C.

He hopes — with Japanese co-operation—to begin shortly the creation of an iron and steel industry, a new aluminum smelter, as well as plants for processing of other raw materials for export.

Tied in with the program are further major extensions to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. (See also Page 3.)

None of these plans are detailed yet, because the premier points out that private enterprise will be involved on both sides.

But in talks with the Japanese government here the B.C. mission hopes to reach agreement on the basis under which such a program can be carried out over the next few years.

It will involve a further extension of the Japanese partnership in B.C. resource development.

Instead of taking B.C. minerals in the raw state and exporting them to Japan, the mission wants an agreement

Ganges Boat Basin

Even the Fish Are Obliging Here!

GANGES — Two Vancouver visitors left here with a fish story to end all fish stories and a tale of an obliging salmon from Gulf Island waters.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. George O'Brien were preparing to take off in their cruiser from the Ganges boat basin when, with a "flash-thud-flap-and-flap," an 18-pound spring salmon landed on the dock practically at their feet.

A yell from the O'Briens brought the Harold Days who were moored nearby. Mrs. O'Brien grabbed a broom from Mrs. Day and beat the salmon to death.

* * *

Still stunned by their good fortune the O'Briens left immediately for Vancouver to start telling their fish story.

Blood Donor Turnout Proves Disappointing

CAMPBELL RIVER — A disappointing turnout of local residents gave support to the blood donor clinic this week.

"The turnout was disappointing," said Mrs. H. Sutton, chairman of the blood clinic. Only 268 pints were donated. The quota was 300.

* * *

Inmates of Snowdon and Lakeview prison camps donated 62 pints. From Lakeview alone, 95 per cent of the men available donated.

Of those who did not donate, some were under 18, others were out on a training exercise. At Snowdon, 71 per cent of officers and prisoners donated blood.

* * *

Last spring Campbell River residents donated 264 pints, and more than 400 pints were given at the clinic last fall.

Red Cross officials are also well short of quota after a recent fund drive.

The group was aiming for $3,250, but the result was more than $400 less than this amount.

In 1964 the village oversubscribed the fund for a total of $3,444.75.

Indians pull against branding-chute ropes which restrain cow as Indian Affairs department officials at right prepare to apply iron.—(Agnes Flett)

Duncan Indians Turn Cowboy For Branding

DUNCAN—Indian affairs department reports its Revolving Herd Plan, to help Indians in B.C. to become established as cattle ranchers, is working well.

The first 22 Hereford cows, in calf, were brought to the Island last fall, and have now produced a crop of calves for local Indians.

The herd will be kept by each band for two crops of calves, then will go to another band, while the calf crop remains with the band to raise.

To keep a record of the cattle, the department encourages branding of the cows.

This is the first known official branding program on Vancouver Island.

The Indians have set up a corral and are busy branding the cattle.

Road to Comox Sought

Albernis Fear Ferry Will Drain Tourists

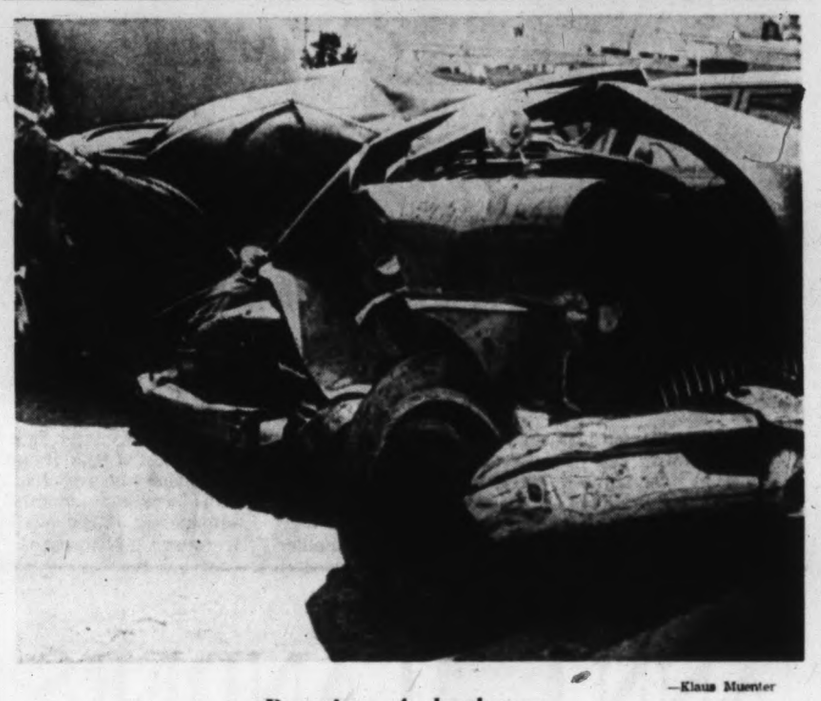

PORT ALBERNI—Tourists will be "drained" from the Alberni Valley by the new Comox-Powell River ferry link, Mayor Les Hammer told the Chamber of Commerce Friday.

Continued effort for an early start on building a Comox-Alberni road was urged by Mayor Hammer.

He said the new ferry being operated by the highways department will drain tourists, and a loop highway would be an asset in efforts to attract more visitors.

Mayor Hammer recommended the chamber keep in close contact with Courtenay-Comox chamber on the matter.

He said he has been informed that the road survey has been completed, and right-of-way slashed out for the proposed road.

Chemainus Inquest Ordered

Victorian Dies as Car Smashes Into Bridge

By KLAUS MUENTER

CHEMAINUS — An inquest jury has been selected to probe the death of a young Victoria man whose car shot off the road near a bridge construction site.

The inquest into the death of 26-year-old Leo Robert Marceau, 3572 Tillicum Road, will open Monday with viewing of the body.

CAR SOUTHBOUND

The jury will meet at Chemainus June 7 with Coroner Dr. R. R. Wilson. Police at Chemainus said Marceau was killed shortly before midnight Thursday when his southbound car crashed about five miles south of Chemainus on the Trans-Canada Highway.

The dead man was found 12 feet from his car, on the soft shoulder of the highway. He had been the lone occupant.

NO WITNESSES

Police said there were no witnesses to the violent crash, but it appeared the car went out of control, struck a guard rail, smashed into the concrete bridge abutment, careened into a warning sign, rammed into a wooden railing and finally came to a standstill after it had struck a signal light pole.

Traffic at the construction site is controlled by temporary traffic lights and chanelled into one lane across the E & N overpass.

WIDOW SURVIVES

Marceau is survived by his widow and a small child.

Police said they are looking for witnesses who arrived at the scene shortly after the accident. Police were called by a passing motorist.

For Summer School

Costs Up, Fees Firm

DUNCAN—Costs are rising, but there will be no fee increase for students attending summer school in Cowichan, Lake Cowichan, Ladysmith and Gulf Islands school districts.

This year's summer school will start July 7 and end August 6, directors of the central committee from the four districts decided Friday.

TWO COURSES

Elemenary and secondary students will attend classes at Quamichan Junior High. Elementary classes will also be held at Lake Cowichan and Ladysmith.

The directors followed recommendations of summer school director Alan Mole, and fees and salaries will be the same as last year. Fees for elementary students for one course are $25 and for two courses $35. Secondary pupils will have to pay $35 for one and $45 for two courses.

Director Wilf Peck, a trustee of Cowichan District, said even if costs of the summer school should outweigh the fees, fees should not be increased, but the program should be subsidized by the districts.

Mr. Peck suggested a resolution be sent by individual boards to the next convention of the B.C. School Trustees Association of which he is the president, to enable districts to assist summer schools whenever necessary.

SELF-SUPPORTING

In the past Cowichan Valley Summer School has been self-supporting with a small surplus.

Last year's enrollment was 219 and only a minor increase is anticipated for this summer.

Car Crash

Alberni Man Injured

ALBERNI—A young woman suffering multiple injuries was rushed to a Victoria hospital after a car crash here Thursday.

Officials at Royal Jubilee Hospital reported David Lewis, 21, in satisfactory condition.

A car in which he was a passenger collided with another vehicle on River Road at 12:30 a.m. Thursday.

MINOR INJURIES

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reginald Lee, Stirling Arm Road, occupants of the other vehicle, were treated for minor injuries and released.

Also examined were Robert Creighton, said by police to have been driving Lewis' car, and Glenn, 17-year-old brother of Lewis.

Damage was estimated at $3,000 to the two vehicles which crashed just after the Lee car turned west from Josephine Street. The other car was also travelling west.

LADYSMITH — Stanley Eugene has been convicted in magistrate's court of operating an oyster shucking plant without a permit from the health department. He was fined $25.

Campbell River Funeral

Hymn Sung in Kwakiutl By Indians at Graveside

CAMPBELL RIVER—Indians from Cape Mudge, Campbell River and Comox crowded Campbell River First United Church to attend funeral services for storm victim George Price.

Mr. Price, 21, was one of five young men lost May 15 when the troller Jamie-Lee sank in a storm off Bold Point.

PRESUMED DROWNED

His body was found tangled in the rigging of the sunken vessel after it was spotted by B.C. Airlines pilot Gordon McKenzie.

Others missing and presumed drowned are Ralph Chickite, 32, owner of the boat and father of five children; Ernest Billy, 22; John Dick, 25, and Robert Dick, 18. All were members of the Cape Mudge band.

GRAVESIDE HYMN

Rev. Frank Baldock officiated at the funeral services while Jim King led the singing of Nearer My God to Thee in the Kwakiutl language at the graveside.

Pallbearers were Tom Henderson, Benny Billy, Louis Wilson, James and Robert Cliffe.

Chief Councillor Dave Moon of Cape Mudge village thanked all those who helped in the search for the missing men.

Campbell River High-Rise

$65,000 Bond Demanded

CAMPBELL RIVER — Municipal council has refused a request from developers of a proposed 10-storey apartment building to amend the zoning bylaw requiring the posting of a 10 per cent performance bond.

Thor Peterson, of a local real estate firm and spokesman for the development company, expressed amazement at the necessity for a $65,000 bond.

However, Coun. John Steven said he saw no reason why the bond should create any hardship as it would be released as soon as work was proceeding as planned.

"The builders of the Tyee Plaza posted a bond of $200,000," he pointed out.

Council decided to write a number of municipalities for their views on the problem.

"Meanwhile," said Reeve Jack Lee, "the stipulation stands."

ROAD PLEDGE

Councillors were all delighted at a letter from the highways department saying that Erickson Road to the airport was included in this year's estimates and would be improved and paved "during this construction season."

A letter from the department of transport assured council that paving of the airport runway should start early in June and be completed early in July. The department said the contractor was working "on schedule" but was not in a position to work a double shift due to the increased cost and the scarcity of qualified workmen for laying asphalt.

Nanaimo's Plan

Brainwashing Beats Smoking

NANAIMO — Want to kick the coffin-nail habit?

A mass rally and recently-developed telephone brainwashing technique may help some Nanaimo citizens to give up smoking, beginning next week.

In conjuction with the provincial Government's Anti-Smoking Day Monday, Pastor Gordon Smedley of Seventh Day Adventist Church, lawyer Ron MacIsaac and Dr. T. G. Cosgrove will discuss the dangers of cigarette smoking at an hour-long forum in Seventh Day Adventist Church on Highland Boulevard. The rally will begin at 8 p.m.

Those who get the message at the Monday night rally will be able to call on a Smokers' Dial for moral support in their battle to quit smoking beginning Tuesday for five days.

The phone number will be 753-4011 and the messages, 60, seconds long will aid the new non-smoker in keeping away from the weed.

Rock Found Off Saturna

An uncharted rock has been discovered under 10 feet of water in the northern approach to Narvaez Bay on Saturna Island, the department of transport has warned mariners.

The department also reports the flashing white light at the end of Iona Island jetty has been relit, and Copper Islands light is not burning.

Death Car Driver Identified

PORT ALBERNI—RCMP say a car which struck and killed a three-year-old boy Thursday was driven by Douglas Norman Blakey, Beaver Creek Road.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Brown, 627 Fifteenth Avenue North, died in West Coast General Hospital shortly after the accident at the intersection of Fifteenth Avenue North and Bute Street.

Funeral service for the youngster will be held in Stevens Funeral Chapel at 3 p.m. Monday.

DUNCAN — Frederick J. Kaelble of Duncan was fined $75 on a charge of liquor consumption in a public place. Fines of $75, $30 and $20 respectively were imposed on Richard Corfield, John Morton and John R. Walker, all of Duncan, for careless driving. Driving while suspended cost Raymond H. Ganderton of Nanaimo a $30 fine.

At Skutz Falls

Cable Bridge Planned Over Cowichan River

DUNCAN — Most reasonable foot crossing of the Cowichan River at Skutz Falls would be a cable bridge, Cowichan Fish and Game Association president Arnie Williams said after an on-the-spot study.

Mr. Williams met with officials of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Company to study the situation Tuesday.

He said concrete footings of Summit Bridge, which was destroyed by vandals about a year ago, will be used for the proposed bridge's guide poles but permission will have to be obtained from the B.C. Forest Service at Vancouver.

Mr. Williams said Mac-Powell will provide the cable for the bridge and Western Forest Industries Ltd., had already offered to provide the lumber. The bridge will link a Cowichan River footpath, already partly cleared, between Duncan and Lake Cowichan.

"At this stage, it is impossible to say how much the cable bridge will cost," Mr. Williams said, "but most of the labor will be provided by members of the Cowichan Fish and Game Association."

PORT ALBERNI—A $250 fine was demanded of Harry Wyans, who pleaded guilty to an impaired driving charge when he appeared before Magistrate W. E. MacLeod. Roland Young pleaded guilty to being an interdicted person in possession of liquor and was fined $50.

Nanaimo Retailers Set Agenda

NANAIMO— Independent Retailers' Association will hold a general meeting in early June.

Chairman Haig Burns said the possibility of all member businesses staying open six days a week during July and August will be discussed.

Other items to be discussed at the general meeting are a sales program for employees of member businesses, administration of parking on Gordon Street development, a trip to Kamloops, Kelowna and Penticton by IRA members, a program to cut down on shoplifting and the passing of bad cheques.

Alexander School

Annex Tenders Zoom Cowichan Board Finds

DUNCAN — Cowichan School Board has opened tenders for an annex construction job, and found the lowest bid is much higher than the estimate.

Two tenders were opened Friday for a six-classroom annex and activity room addition at Alexander School under Referendum number seven.

The first one, from Cowichan Construction, amounted to $191,261 and the second bid came from Burak Construction and was $178,256.

The original estimate was $135,000.

Secretary-treasurer of the Cowichan School District, G. F. Dyson, said the lower bid submitted by Burak Consruction was not accompanied by the required bid bond amount which is 10 per cent of the total tender.

Both bidders are Duncan firms.

Education Equality Goal for Cowichan

DUNCAN—Equality of educational opportunity has been championed by Cowichan school trustee Wilf Peck, who is also president of the B.C. School Trustees Association.

He said regulations governing a vocational wing proposed for Cowichan Senior High are discriminatory.

He said other districts do not have enough pupils to carry out a similar program on the same scale.

Mr. Peck said he will present a resolution to the next board meeting recommending "that adjacent areas be permitted to co-operate in establishment of consolidated high schools where required."

Murder: View Royal Man Charged

A young View Royal father, charged Friday with the capital murder of 14-year-old Susan Freschi May 11, was to be transferred today to Oakalla Prison.

Robinson

★ ★ ★

Trembling Fingers, Pale Face

David Robinson paid no attention to the crowd of reporters that half-filled the small public gallery in court Friday as a charge of capital murder was read to him.

The youthful, blond prisoner looked smaller than his slightly stooped five-foot-three as he entered the courtroom.

★ ★ ★

He was flanked by two burly RCMP plainclothesmen while a third policeman watched from a half-step behind.

While he waited for Magistrate Harold Alder to appear, Robinson touched his pale face repeatedly with trembling fingers.

★ ★ ★

After his appearance, he was whisked back to his cell as quickly as he had arrived from inside the RCMP headquarters office that adjoins the courtroom.

David Leonard Robinson, of 324 Old Island Highway, a 24-year-old self-employed janitor and father of a week-old baby, was remanded to June 5.

He is charged with the bludgeon slaying of the pretty American teen-ager in a secluded wood about a quarter-mile from her aunt's home at 2637 Chilco Road.

VISITING AUNT

The La Canada, Calif., schoolgirl had been staying with her aunt, Mrs. Gladys Earnshaw, and her cousin Felicity since last fall.

Susan's nude and battered body was found by searchers May 12, the day after she disappeared on the two-mile walk from the Trans-Canada Highway bus stop to her aunt's home.

TIED WITH ROPE

Her hands had been tied behind her back with a 15-foot length of ⅜-inch manila rope which has since undergone laboratory tests. Police declined to discuss the findings of the rope analysis.

RCMP Inspector G. M. McKay said Robinson was first arrested last week on a charge of breaking and entering. Investigation of the lesser charge led to the decision to lay the capital murder charge Thursday night, he said.

NOT CUSTOMARY

He declined to give details of the breaking and entering charge because it would "... involve people who had nothing to do with the murder investigation."

Robinson will probably spend his week's remand at Oakalla. Police said it is not their custom to keep prisoners on week-long remands in city jail cells.

REMAND AGREED

He is scheduled to appear before Magistrate William Ostler in central magistrate's court at Saanich June 5, when a date is to be set for a preliminary hearing.

Friday's appearance was before Magistrate Harold Alder in provincial magistrate's court at the Law Courts Building.

Special prosecutor W. R. McIntyre and defence counsel Alan Bigelow, both of Victoria, agreed to a remand of the breaking and entering charge to the same date.

WEEK EARLIER

It was Robinson's second remand on the breaking and entering charge. He had originally appeared a week earlier in the same court.

Normal procedure in capital cases is for a preliminary hearing to be held in magistrate's court first. If the magistrate is satisfied the Crown has produced enough evidence to warrant committal, a Supreme Court trial is scheduled, usually before a judge and jury.

LEFT SCHOOL

Investigators painstakingly pieced together the girl's movements up to her disappearance and conducted hundreds of interviews with neighbors in the sparsely populated area, patrons of the Six-Mile House beer parlor and restaurant, and even casual passersby.

They believe Susan had left St. Ann's Academy after school to practice riding at the Victoria Riding Academy. She was preparing for a riding competition.

TELEPHONED HOME

She telephoned her aunt later to say she would be a little late because she intended to stay and help with a stable cleanup.

Mrs. Earnshaw, who usually picked up the girl in the family car at the bus stop, told Susan she planned to go to a movie that

Royal Farewell

HAMBURG (AP)—Queen Elizabeth, acclaimed by a boisterous harbor farewell of foghorns, sirens, water jets and cheers, sailed homeward from Germany Friday night in the Royal yacht Britannia.

Statue of Queen Victoria surveys yachts gathering in Inner Harbor for today's Swiftsure race which begins at 9:30 a.m. off Beacon Hill Park. Total of 86 yachts sail in 136-mile Swiftsure and shorter Juan de Fuca race but prospects of sailing weather are not too promising. Prediction is for winds up to 20 miles an hour, diminishing in afternoon. — (B. C. Government)

U.S. Surprises:

SPACE LEAP AND TOUCH

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—U.S. Astronaut Edward White will leap from his orbiting capsule early in June to take a self-propelled flight through space, officials disclosed Friday. He will approach — and perhaps touch — another satellite and snap a series of pictures.

In a stunning announcement, the Federal Space Agency said White and Gemini-4 pilot James McDivitt would try to rendezvous their craft with the burned out Titan-2 second-stage rocket that earlier put them in orbit.

White will climb outside the cabin and leap off into space by himself as Gemini-4 crosses over Hawaii on the second orbit.

He will then use a hand-held manoeuvring unit with double-barrelled rockets to try to nuzzle up to the gleaming rocket stage which, like White, will be whizzing through space at about 17,000 miles an hour.

The Federal Space Agency announced that a faulty battery had been replaced in the 7,200-pound spaceship and tests were being held to see if the ship was ready for flight.

The agency said June 3 remained the target date for launch, but a re-evaluation of the schedule is expected today after a crucial simulated flight test. Sources said a delay was likely.

White

They're Delighted

Meanwhile, McDivitt and White said they were delighted with the go-ahead for the unprecedented spacecraft and human manoeuvring in space.

The experiment was the latest to be added to the plans for Gemini 4—a planned four-day voyage that, if all goes well, will match and surpass the best the Soviet Union has yet managed in manned flight.

Still later in the flight, officials said, rookie astronauts McDivitt and White will try again to manoeuvre up to, or rendezvous with—but not actually touch—the Titan 2 Rocket.

The fabulous adventure depends upon how gently McDivitt can manoeuvre his capsule away from the booster rocket.

If it is soft enough, and doesn't cause the rocket to tumble and fly off in another direction, Gemini-4 and Titan-2 will fly "in formation" around the earth, never more than about 100 feet apart.

McDivitt will use his control jets—the ones successfully tested by astronauts Virgil Grissom and John Young last March 23—to close the gap to about 25 feet.

Then White will go out of the capsule into space, wearing a $26,000 suit of space clothes and 22 layers of material to protect him from the hostile environment.

Nylon Lifeline

White will be securely attached to the Gemini-4 capsule by a 25-foot nylon lifeline. But it will permit him freedom to move almost at will in that radius.

The hand-held propulsion unit, shaped something like a child's bicycle handlebars, employs oxygen jets with one pound of thrust each to push him from place to place. He can operate the gadget by simply squeezing.

The camera will be attached to the "handlebar" portion of the unit, officials said.

A spokesman said the manoeuvre probably would put White within touching distance of the Titan-2. But whether he will actually reach out and make such an attempt would depend on several factors, including whether the Titan-2 was tumbling.

After finishing his picture-taking mission, White will "reel" himself back in and re-enter the capsule. Then McDivitt will fire the manoeuvring jets again to put Gemini-4 about 16 miles behind the booster.

On the fifth orbit, as the capsule passes over the Atlantic between South America and Africa six hours and 40 minutes after lift-off, the astronauts will try again to drive their ship toward the rocket stage.

Federal Space Agency manned spaceflight chief George Mueller said that "if successful, we will have done some things that the Russians have not tried ... manoeuvring to rendezvous and manoeuvring an astronaut in space with a manoeuvring unit."

Lima Students Burn U.S. Flag

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — An American flag was burned Friday during a demonstration by 200 students against the landing of troops by the United States in the Dominican Republic.

Atlantic Hop By Copter Piece of Cake

PRESTWICK, Scotland (AP)—Four Canadians stepped from a helicopter at Prestwick Airport Friday night after the first unescorted helicopter crossing of the Atlantic.

Their skipper, Thomas Scheer, 42, of Langley, B.C., called the 4,000-mile flight "a piece of cake."

"Just routine flight," he said. "We owe it all to Lindbergh and the months we spent in planning."

It took 15 days.

'Selfish East' Lashed

Western Canada might go it alone economically if the federal government doesn't change its financial policies, national Social Credit leader Robert Thompson warned here Friday.

Mr. Thompson charged Finance Minister Walter Gordon's policies discriminate against the west and accused the federal government of failing to recognize a boom going on in B.C. and the Prairie provinces.

SELFISH INTERESTS

The Red Deer MP said Mr. Gordon's financial policies reflect "selfish eastern interests that think they can use the West as their milk cow."

As an example of discrimination, Mr. Thompson pointed to Mr. Gordon's intention of not allowing the provinces to invest in banks.

The Social Credit leader agreed with Premier Bennett's statement that there is a widen-

Church Committees Agree

Anglican, United Closer to Merger

TORONTO (CP) — A group of clergymen representing the United Church and the Anglican Church have agreed on the basic principles of union between Canada's two largest Protestant denominations, it was learned Friday night.

★ ★ ★

A reliable source in the Anglican Church said details of the principles will be set out Tuesday at a press conference.

He stressed that the agreement is, so far, only between committees representing the two churches and any union must still be approved by the synod or general council of both churches.

Union between the churches would create a body with more than 6,000,000 members or adherents. In the 1961 census 3,664,000 Canadians listed their religion as United Church and 2,409,000 as Anglican.

The two churches have been holding discussions toward a possible union for more than 20 years. The source said the two "committees of ten," which produced the document to be released Tuesday, have agreed on the principles of faith and order.

This is regarded as the basic and most vital step to union, and implies a theological agreement on the nature of the way it should be governed.

Agreement between the committees was reached May 14 at a closed meeting. A copy of the document they consented to will be mailed to clergy from both churches Tuesday, the source said.

TOKYO — Premier Bennett has mapped the course his government intends to pursue in establishing secondary industry in B.C.

But in talks with the Japanese government here the B.C. mission hopes to reach agreement on the basis under which such a program can be carried out over the next few years.

It will involve a further extension of the Japanese partnership in B.C. resource development.

Instead of taking B.C. minerals in the raw state and exporting them to Japan, the mission wants an agreement

Dogwood for the Imperial Palace

● There will soon be B.C. dogwoods blooming in the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

Premier Bennett this week promised to send several trees as a gift to Crown Princess Michiko. The B.C. mission, which was received at the palace by Crown Prince Akihito and his consort, presented the princess with a dogwood painting by Emily Sartain. The prince received a B.C. coat of arms.

Lands and forests minister Ray Williston was given the job of devising a means of transferring the live dogwoods across the Pacific.
